Tester, 2007-10-23 This book encourages health professionals to reconceptualise their practice in the light of the fact that their patients are deteriorating and dying supporting them in their dichotomous role which involves affirming that person s life whilst acknowledging that that life is ending Professionals are encouraged to think laterally to be creative in their use of their core skills and to use their life skills and experience to change the focus of their interventions By making these changes those involved with caring for the dying will be able to address issues related to burnout and feeling de skilled The authors share their considerable experience with the reader what works for both patient and carer professional when working in this field By providing workable solutions they empower those in disempowering situations such as when working with terminally ill children and adults The book is truly holistic and client centred in its approach upholding the philosophy of palliative care Aimed at all who interact with children and adults who have a life limiting condition or who are dying Offers practical

examples of approaches to dilemmas and emotional issues commonly face by those working in palliative care Encourages professionals to think laterally to be creative in their use of core skills and to use their life skills and experience to change the focus of their interventions Moves the emphasis away from the medical model to the emotional and spiritual influences on quality of life Offers clear workable guidelines and demonstrates practical solutions based on proven theory and experience to problems encountered on a day to day basis by patients and those coming into contact with them

A Practical Guide to Cluster Randomised Trials in Health Services Research Sandra Eldridge, Sally Kerry, 2012-02-20 Cluster randomised trials are trials in which groups or clusters of individuals are randomly allocated to different forms of treatment In health care these trials often compare different ways of managing a disease or promoting healthy living in contrast to conventional randomised trials which randomise individuals to different treatments classically comparing new drugs with a placebo They are increasingly common in health services research This book addresses the statistical practical and ethical issues arising from allocating groups of individuals or clusters to different interventions Key features Guides readers through the stages of conducting a trial from recruitment to reporting Presents a wide range of examples with particular emphasis on trials in health services research and primary care with both principles and techniques explained Topics are specifically presented in the order in which investigators think about issues when they are designing a trial Combines information on the latest developments in the field together with a practical guide to the design and implementation of cluster randomised trials Explains principles and techniques through numerous examples including many from the authors own experience Includes a wide range of references for those who wish to read further This book is intended as a practical guide written for researchers from the health professions including doctors psychologists and allied health professionals as well as statisticians involved in the design execution analysis and reporting of cluster randomised trials Those with a more general interest will find the plentiful examples illuminating
