Poetry moves us Sometimes a poem changes our life Then we analyze it as a cultural artifact with no special connection to us An extensive critical apparatus enables us to develop sophisticated interpretations but we dismiss as idiosyncratic even life changing experiences of poetry We need an apparatus to unfold our experience of reading poems into a more effective relationship with the world Modern poets in particular wrote prophetic verse for this purpose Archetypal psychology and phenomenology describe the soul that modern poetry moves in us Three prosodic mechanisms activate the psyche The polyphony of accentual and quantitative versification creates depth to lure the soul Aural images reshape the reader's stream of consciousness Readers follow the movement of blocks of verse across the expanse of the page with what Maurice Merleau Ponty terms the phenomenal body These mechanisms reach us at the collective level of consciousness and generate the power we need to solve big collective challenges such as race climate change and inequality

Excerpt from The Second Book of Modern Verse A Selection From the Work of Contemporaneous American Poets It was my intention when preparing The Little Book of Modern Verse published in 1913 to continue the series by a volume once in five years but as it seemed inadvisable to issue one during the war it is now six years since the publication of the first volume In the meantime that the series might cover the period of American poetry from the beginning The Little Book of American Poets was edited confined chiefly to work of the nineteenth century but ending with a group of living poets whose work has fallen equally within our own period This group including Edwin Markham Bliss Carman Edith Thomas Louise Imogen Guiney Lizette Woodworth Reese and many others whose work has enriched both periods was fully represented also in The Little Book of Modern Verse and it has seemed necessary therefore keenly as I regret the necessity which limits of space impose to omit the work of all poets who have been represented in both of my former collections Indeed the period covered by the present volume has been so prolific that it became necessary if one would represent it with even approximate adequacy to forego including many poets from The Little Book of Modern Verse itself and but twenty eight are repeated from that collection Even with these necessary eliminations in the interest of space for newer poets the general scheme of the series that of small intimate volumes that shall be typical of the period rather than exhaustive has made it impossible to include all whose work I should otherwise have been glad to represent About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

The Second Book of Modern Verse Jessie Belle Rittenhouse, 1920. Library Manual for High Schools Indiana. Department of Public Instruction, 1923. Bulletin Texas Education Agency, 1925. Hindu Theology in Early Modern South Asia Kiyokazu Okita, 2014-07-31. Focusing on the idea of genealogical affiliation, sampradaya, Kiyokazu Okita explores the interactions between the royal power and the priestly authority in eighteenth-century north India. He examines how the religious policies of Jaisingh II (1688-1743) of Jaipur influenced the self-representation of Gauya Vaishnavism as articulated by Baladeva Vidyabhattacharya (ca. 1700-1793). Gauya Vaishnavism centred around God Kṛṣṇa was inaugurated by Caitanya (1486-1533) and quickly became one of the most influential Hindu devotional movements in early modern South Asia. In the increasingly volatile late Mughal period, Jaisingh II tried to establish the legitimacy of his kingship by resorting to a moral discourse. As part of this discourse, he demanded that religious traditions in his kingdom conform to what he conceived of as Brahmanically normative. In this context, the Gauya school was forced to deal with their lack of clear genealogical affiliation, lack of an independent commentary on the Brahmasūtras, and their worship of Goddess Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa who, according to the Gauyas, were not married. Based on a study of Baladeva's Brahmasūtra commentary, Kiyokazu Okita analyses how the Gauyas responded to the king's demand.
