

Figure 1: Mechanism of bacterial major protein export and secretion. In the Sec pathway, unfolded proteins newly released in the periplasm can interact with chaperones and get transferred to the outer membrane, fold spontaneously or with the help of periplasmic chaperones, get secreted using other specialized systems, or become membrane-anchored via small lipid moieties guided by specialized lipoprotein sorting systems. Folded proteins are delivered via Tat system. Bacterial effectors or DNA following their delivery into host interact with its membrane or various organelles. Legends below the diagram describe different parts of bacteria and target host cells.

Neurosecretion: Secretory Mechanisms José R. Lemos, Govindan Dayanithi, 2020-03-31 How do electrical activity and calcium signals in neurons influence the secretion of peptide hormones This volume presents the current state of knowledge regarding the electrical calcium signaling and synaptic properties of neuroendocrine systems from both vertebrate and invertebrate systems The contributions span in vivo and in vitro studies that address state dependent plasticity relevance of firing patterns membrane properties calcium flux including dynamic imaging and homeostasis and molecular mechanisms of exocytosis including from non neuronal secretory cells The chapters focus not only on research results but also on how experiments are conducted using state of the art techniques and how the resulting data are interpreted While there are many books on the secretory properties of neurons this is the first to focus on the distinctive secretory properties of neuroendocrine neurons Accordingly it offers an important text for undergraduate and graduate neuroscience students and will also appeal to established scientists and postdoctoral fellows This is the eighth volume in the Masterclass in Neuroendocrinology series now a co publication between Springer Nature and the INF International Neuroendocrine Federation Volumes 1-7 published by Wiley

Mechanisms of Physical and Emotional Stress George P. Chrousos, D. Lynn Loriaux, Philip W. Gold, 2013-11-11 It has been over 50 years since Hans Selye formulated his concept of stress This came after the isolation of epinephrine and norepinephrine and after the sympathetic system was associated with Walter Cannon's fight or flight response The intervening years have witnessed a number of discoveries that have furthered our understanding of the mechanisms of the stress response The isolation identification and manufacture of glucocorticoids the identification and synthesis of ACTH and vasopressin and the demonstration of hypothalamic regulation of ACTH secretion were pivotal discoveries The recent identification and synthesis of CRH by Willie Vale and his colleagues gave new impetus to stress research Several new concepts of stress have developed as a result of advances in bench research These include the concept of an integrated stress system the realization that there are bi-directional effects between stress and the immune system the suggestion that a number of common psychiatric disorders represent dysregulation of systems responding to stress and the epidemiologic association of stress with the major scourges of humanity
