THE modified essay question (MEQ) is an original College development of the patient-management questionnaire format widely used in undergraduate and postgraduate medical education, both in the United Kingdom and overseas.

The MEQ paper is presented in the form of a booklet. Each page presents a separate problem which must be responded to before turning over. Further information is divulged and new problems posed as the case develops. Thus the dimension of time can be built in and this important factor in general practice emphasized.

It is possible to simulate the clinical sequence of decision-making in actual consultations. Unlike the MCQ and the Australian PMP (patient management problems), cues are not used. This open-ended approach allows the exploration of two areas affecting the candidate's clinical decision-making: recall of clinical and behavioural patterns; sensitivity to the constraints of time, and to the modifying influences of emotional, social and cultural factors in patient and doctor.

When constructing an MEQ a compromise has to be reached at each sequential, decision-making point. If the question is too open-ended, the candidate's sensitivity and selectivity become buried in a 'blunderbuss' offering that often bears little relation to practice.

If the question is too circumscribed, it does not allow sufficient exploration of the candidate's range of clinical thinking. For example the question: 'A 15-year-old girl reports to you with 3 months dysmenorrhoea', might be followed by any of the following requests to the candidate:

1. 'Outline briefly how you would handle the situation.'
2. 'What is the single most likely hidden motivation underlying the patient's complaint?'
3. 'Enumerate in order of probability those four diagnostic possibilities that would guide your further questions.'

The range of answers to the third is likely to give the examiners the best insight into the candidate's clinical thinking, sensitivity and selectivity in dealing with this common primary care problem. Nine or 10 such questions can be used to assess the candidate's ability to collect, select and use data to make appropriate decisions in the sequential situations of the consultation.

The MEQ has been used to test skills of: information gathering via history-taking, examination, and the use of investigations and procedures; hypothesis formation and testing; evaluation of collected data; definition of the problems posed in physical, psychological and social terms; decision-making; recording and communication with colleagues, patients and relatives; preparation of plans for management and therapy; selection of appropriate treatment; understanding the problems of compliance; organization and mobilization of practice and the resources of the community; provision of continuing care and follow-up; and anticipation of future problems.

Constructing the question paper and the marking schedule is a time-consuming task which involves the MEQ group coordinator, a nucleus group of examiners, cells of four MEQ group members and either the entire Panel of Examiners or the increasingly numerous MEQ group itself. A topic area is chosen to ensure appropri-
