Aquaculture, Innovation and Social Transformation Keith Culver, David Castle, 2008-09-15 Keith Culver and David Castle Introduction Aquaculture is at the leading edge of a surprisingly polarized debate about the way we produce our food According to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization aquaculture production has increased 8.8% per year since 1970 far surpassing productivity gains in terrestrial meat production at 2.8% in the same period FAO 2007 Like the green revolution before it the blue revolution in aquaculture promises rapidly increased productivity through technology driven intensification of aquaculture animal and plant production Costa Pierce 2002 The Economist 2003 Proponents of further aquaculture development emphasize aquaculture's ancient origins and potential to contribute to global food security during an unprecedented collapse in global fisheries World Fish Center Meyers and Worm 2003 Worm et al 2006 For them technology driven intensification is an ordinary and unremarkable extension of past practice Opponents counter with images of marine and freshwater environments devastated by intensive aquaculture practices producing unsustainable and unhealthy food products They view the promised revolution as a scam nothing more than clever marketing by profit hungry shareholders looking for ways to distract the public from the real harms done by aquaculture The stark contrast between proponents and opponents of modern aquaculture recalls decades of disputes about intensive terrestrial plant and animal agriculture disputes whose vigor shows that the debate is about much more than food production Ruse and Castle 2002

Sustainable Fish Farming Helge Reinertsen, Herborg Haaland, 1995-06-01 The aim of the symposium on which this text is based was to discuss the current practices of the fish farming industry and search for sustainable directions for future development Topics covered include resources for fish food in aquaculture genetics and environment and aquaculture interaction

Aquaculture and the Environment Barbara Sladonja, 2011-12-22 Aquaculture is the art science and business of cultivating aquatic animals and plants in fresh or marine waters It is the extension of fishing resulted from the fact that harvests of wild sources of fish and other aquatic species cannot keep up with the increased demand of a growing human population Expansion of aquaculture can result with less care for the environment The first prerequisite to sustainable aquaculture is clean water but bad management of aquatic species production can alter or even destroy existing wild habitat increase local pollution levels or negatively impact local species Aquatic managers are aware of this and together with scientists are looking for modern and more effective solutions to many issues regarding fish farming This book presents recent research results on the interaction between aquaculture and environment and includes several case studies all over the world with the aim of improving and performing sustainable aquaculture Aquaculture United
