Bitter Tastes Donna M. Campbell, 2016 Challenging the conventional understandings of literary naturalism defined primarily through its male writers, Donna M. Campbell examines the ways in which American women writers wrote naturalistic fiction and redefined its principles for their own purposes Bitter Tastes looks at examples from Edith Wharton Kate Chopin Willa Cather Ellen Glasgow and others and positions their work within the naturalistic canon that arose near the turn of the twentieth century Campbell further places these women writers in a broader context by tracing their relationship to early film which like naturalism claimed the ability to represent elemental social truths through a documentary method Women had a significant presence in early film and constituted 40 percent of scenario writers in many cases they also served as directors and producers Campbell explores the features of naturalism that assumed special prominence in women s writing and early film and how the work of these early naturalists diverged from that of their male counterparts in important ways among many of the well known intellectuals of the day such as Ralph Waldo Emerson Nathaniel Hawthorne Henry David Thoreau and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow In her later years Alcott suffered chronic health problems including vertigo She and her earliest biographers attributed her illness and death to mercury poisoning During her American Civil War service Alcott contracted typhoid fever and was treated with a compound containing mercury Recent analysis of Alcott s illness suggests that her chronic health problems may have been associated with an autoimmune disease not mercury exposure However mercury is a known trigger for autoimmune diseases as well Be this as it may even when extremely ill Alcott was still able to pen these volumes as a memento to her niece which says a lot about the personality and determination of Alcott herself
