Virginia Woolf in the Age of Mechanical Reproduction Pamela Caughie, 2013-10-31 This collection of ten original essays is the first to read Virginia Woolf through the prism of our technological present Expanding on the work of feminist and cultural critics of the past two decades this volume offers a sustained reflection on the relationship between Walter Benjamin's analyses of mass culture and technology and Woolf's cultural productions of the 1920s and 1930s It also brings out the extent to which Woolf was beginning to image the technological society then taking shape This book takes part in contemporary efforts to rethink modernism as a more globalized and technologized phenomenon Twentieth Century Fiction George Woodcock, 1983-04-01 David Lodge and the Art-and-Reality Novel Daniel Ammann, 2020-03-31 Two distinctive views emerge concerning the presumed battle between Lodge's creative and critical work One holds that Lodge's fiction is antimodernist and therefore lags behind his criticism which displays a theoretical interest in the modernist and though to a lesser extent in the postmodernist text According to the opposite view time and again there have been strong elements of modernism and postmodernism in Lodge's novels In order to bring together the two lines of Lodge's work this study shall focus on some aspects in his fiction that are also discussed in his criticism Given this interdependence his declared interest in what he calls the art and reality novel can be regarded as a major starting point The emphasis falls on various forms of interplay in the fields of literature criticism and reality Accordingly it should be possible to apply Lodge the theorist to Lodge the novelist and thus bridge or at least explain the alleged division in his work Expert Modernists, Matricide and Modern Culture L.
