Rethinking the History of American

Education W. Reese, J. Rury, 2007-12-25 This collection of original essays examines the history of American education as it has developed as a field since the 1970s and moves into a post revisionist era and looks forward to possible new directions for the future Contributors take a comprehensive approach beginning with colonial education and spanning to modern day while also looking at various aspects of education from higher education to curriculum to the manifestation of social inequality in education The essays speak to historians educational researchers policy makers and others seeking fresh perspectives on questions related to the historical development of schooling in the United States Wisdom's Passing

Steven Porter, 1989 First Published in 1989 Wisdom's Passing is at once a history commentary and blueprint for positive change unlike any other book on education in the last quarter century The author offers his recommendations to seek to provide an evolutionary reform rather than the typical new method that will solve problems with the American Education system

Progressive Education Theodore Michael Christou, 2012-09-17 Over the course of the twentieth century North American public school curricula moved away from the classics and the humanities and towards progressive subjects such as health and social studies This book delves into how progressivist thinking transformed the rhetoric and the structure of schooling during the first half of the twentieth century with echoes that reverberate strongly today and investigates historical meanings of progressive education Theodore Michael Christou closely examines the case of interwar Ontario where the entire landscape of public education including curricula and avenues to post secondary study were radically transformed over just twenty years Christou contextualizes this reformist thinking in light of a social political and economic climate of change which seemed to demand schools that could actively relate learning to the real world Through its examination of educational journals published throughout the interwar period and previously unexplored archival sources this book illuminates how the present structure of curricula and schooling were achieved

Teaching in A Secondary School

Robert Griffin, 2012-10-12 This collection of original essays is designed for undergraduate and graduate courses in methods of teaching While speaking to all the topics covered in traditional methods textbooks the author also reflects on his own experiences as a student and teacher He adopts a unique conversational and reflective style that integrates concerns for the well being of teachers and their professional development as well as for the role of students in the learning process Engaging and informed this book will be a resource for practicing teachers and those in training

American Educational History J. Wesley Null, 2010-06-01 The American Educational History Journal is a peer reviewed national research journal devoted to the examination of educational topics using perspectives from a variety of disciplines The editors of AEHJ encourage communication between scholars from numerous disciplines nationalities institutions and backgrounds Authors come from a variety of disciplines including political science curriculum history philosophy teacher education and educational leadership Acceptance for publication in AEHJ requires that each author present a well articulated argument that deals substantively with questions of educational history Scientists in the Classroom J. Rudolph, 2002-05-02 During the 1950s leading American scientists embarked on an unprecedented project to remake high school science education Dissatisfaction with the soft school curriculum of the time advocated by the professional education establishment and concern over the growing technological sophistication of the Soviet Union led government officials to encourage a handful of elite research scientists fresh from their World War II successes to revitalize the nations science curricula In Scientists in the Classroom John L Rudolph argues that the Cold War environment long neglected in the history of education literature is crucial to understanding both the reasons for the public acceptance of scientific authority in the field of education and the nature of the curriculum materials that were eventually produced Drawing on a wealth of previously untapped resources from government and university archives Rudolph focuses on the National Science Foundation supported curriculum projects initiated in 1956 What the historical record reveals according to Rudolph is that these materials were designed not just to improve American science education but to advance the professional interest of the American scientific community in the postwar period as well

Curriculum Leadership Allan A. Glatthorn, Floyd Boschee, Bruce M. Whitehead, 2009 A one of a kind resource written for teachers and administrators who want to successfully restructure and enhance school curriculum Back cover The School Principal Theodore J. Kowalski, 2010-08-14 Over the past two decades efforts to improve schools have significantly modified role expectations for principals Today school level administrators are expected to be both visionary leaders and competent managers Based on the conviction that administration is an amalgam of leadership and management The School Principal emphasizes the need for practitioners to apply conceptual skills to make what to do decisions to apply technical skills to make how to do decisions and to apply relational skills to engage in democratic decision making Kowalski frames the book with a discussion of the nature of schools the roles of principals and their need to improve schools The book then provides a balanced treatment of leadership and management covering issues of personal behavior instructional leadership relationship building issues finances facilities personnel management pupil services and maintaining safe schools The text closes with discussion of the vital aspects of practice for contemporary principals addressing problem solving collaborative change strategies and personal commitment to being a principal Special Features Vignettes introduce the subject matter in the context of common challenges faced by practitioners Knowledge Based Questions and Skill Based Activities prompt readers to engage with and reflect on the chapter content The School Principal aligns with the Educational Leadership Consortium Council ELCC Standards Treating principals as concurrently visionary leaders and competent managers this excellent text addresses the needs of aspiring and practicing principals providing the tools to build effective and efficient schools An Historical Introduction to American Education Gerald Lee Gutek, 1991 The Nation Responds United States. Department of Education, 1984 Chronicles recent efforts to reform education throughout America in response to publication titled A Nation at Risk Developing a Quality Curriculum Allan A. Glatthorn, 2004-02-17 In this concise well organized guide to developing high quality school curricula Glatthorn blends sound research initiatives and trends with his practical experience as a curriculum consultant to more than one hundred school systems Glatthorn believes that shared leadership and responsibility are essential to achieve quality Curriculum development should involve a collaborative process that includes input from the state district leaders school administrators classroom teachers and parents From Organizing and Planning for Curriculum Work to Conducting a Curriculum Audit to Ensure Quality Developing a Quality Curriculum is a valuable resource for understanding and practicing sound curriculum development Reinventing Public Education Paul Hill, Lawrence C. Pierce, James W. Guthrie, 2009-02-15 A heated debate is raging over our nation's public schools and how they should be reformed with proposals ranging from imposing national standards to replacing public education altogether with a voucher system for private schools Combining decades of experience in education the authors propose an innovative approach to solving the problems of our school system and find a middle ground between these extremes Reinventing Public Education shows how contracting would radically change the way we operate our schools while keeping them public and accessible to all and making them better able to meet standards of achievement and equity Using public funds local school boards would select private providers to operate individual schools under formal contracts specifying the type and quality of instruction In a hands on concrete fashion the authors provide a thorough explanation of the pros and cons of school contracting and how it would work in practice They show how contracting would free local school boards from operating schools so they can focus on improving educational policy how it would allow parents to choose the best school for their children and finally how it would ensure that schools are held accountable and academic standards are met While retaining a strong public role in education contracting enables schools to be more imaginative adaptable and suited to the needs of children and families In presenting an alternative vision for America's schools Reinventing Public Education is too important to be ignored Transforming Schools D. G. Mulcahy, 2013-05-01 President Obama has on a number of occasions rejected policies that have been tried and do not work Legislation such as No Child Left Behind and policies such as Race to the Top are neither effective nor based on sound research Educational policy making is now more than ever the preserve of politicians advocacy foundations and lobbyists parading as corporate leaders Teachers have little voice their role is merely to be held responsible for policies foisted upon them In Transforming Schools Alternative Perspectives on School Reform our aim is to provide alternative perspectives to the dead end educational policies by which our governments have become consumed We turn the spotlight on a select range of topics that have become the focus of concern and we consider the implications for school improvement These topics include school reform in general the achievement gap literacy standardized assessment social justice and ecojustice aesthetic and moral education and general education
