

REFLECTIONS ON COMMUNITY STUDIES

Manuel Calvino

Universidad de La Habana
Havana, Cuba

In this article, the author reflects on some of the limitations of the field of Community Psychology. The critical reflections offered focus on: (a) the sterile quality of the field's alternatives between offering paternalistic or utopian perspectives on how community processes operate; (b) the field's reliance on scientific objectivity and neutrality; (c) the field's ignorance of those who live in the community and the consequent presentation of "disembodied" communities; (d) the field's ahistorical and decontextualized treatment of community phenomena; and (e) the paradoxical nature of providing help to a community. © 1998 John Wiley & Sons, Inc.

As reflected in its title, my goal in writing this article is to share with my colleagues in community psychology my reflections about the field and the challenges that it confronts. In many respects, our field has taken upon itself a task considered by many as fruitless, if not impossible. That task, however, becomes increasingly important as the needs of those residing in many communities become ever more urgent. I understand that these reflections do not represent either popular or widely held views. Hopefully, those interested in the economic, sociopolitical, and psychological reality of what are defined as communities in Latin America will appreciate the salience of my comments regarding how we apply our expertise in interventions, in theory, and in research methods.

Readers will note that I have not focused my comments on my country, Cuba. I base this decision on several factors. First, I believe community psychology in Cuba has (to paraphrase the old saying) a long past but a short history. In stating this, I am distinguishing clearly between what the field can be, and what it has been, in Cuba. In some respects, the Cuban Revolution represented a community effort, that is, a sociopolitical professionals will find it useful in developing their own reflective practice as well as offering a useful overview of an increasingly important area of nursing Observations on Taiwanese Society and Reflections on Life□Audiobook□ Hong-Chin Tsai,2024-10-01 Content introduction Every person in the world lives in society and those who are aware and use their brains will observe the society they are in and reflect on life Social observation and reflections on life are two essential aspects of being a person and dealing with life By observing society we understand it and learn how to serve society and obtain resources from it Through reflections on life we learn how to navigate life appropriately and cherish it These two aspects are interconnected The results of social observation deepen our reflections on life and the contents of our reflections on life also include insights from social observation The content of this book consists of some observations I have made about our society in my later years of life as well as some reflections on my own life It serves as a record and a self examination The general environment in which everyone finds themselves in society is quite similar but the specific circumstances and daily lifestyles vary Therefore my observations and reflections may have similarities and differences with those of the readers I hope that the similarities can be understood and appreciated by each other and the differences can serve as inspiration and motivation A Quarter Century of Community Psychology Tracey A. Revenson,Anthony R. D'Augelli,Sabine E. French,Diane Hughes,David E. Livert,Edward Seidman,Marybeth Shinn,Hirokazu Yoshikawa,2011-06-27 This work contains original research from the first 25 years of the American Journal of Community Psychology selected to reflect community psychology s rich tradition of theory empirical research action and innovative methods This volume will be of interest to community mental health workers social science and social work researchers health care professionals policymakers and educators in the fields of community and preventative psychology Community-Based Participatory Research for Improved Mental Healthcare Laura Roberts,2012-11-28 Respect for persons beneficence and justice are the principles that collectively form the ethical basis of human research These three principles find expression in Community Based Participatory Research for Improved Mental Healthcare or CBPR a systematic approach for engaging specially defined groups of people in a process of inquiry and social change In the Community Based Participatory Research a panel of renowned authors provide a step by step approach for conducting CBPR providing all the conceptual and methodological guidelines needed to implement this important and extremely fruitful research approach As early career investigators use this mode of collaborative inquiry in the service of society an exciting and entirely new capacity for ethically sound and more rigorous and consequential science can be built An indispensable resource that will be of great interest to researchers from a wide array of disciplines the Community Based Participatory Research for Improved Mental Healthcare is a major addition to the literature and certain to become the gold standard reference in the field Where Music Helps: Community Music Therapy in Action and Reflection Brynjulf Stige,2017-07-05 This book explores how people may use music in ways that are helpful for them especially in relation to a sense of wellbeing belonging and participation The central premise for the study is that help is not a decontextualized effect that music produces The book contributes to the current discourse on music culture and society and it is developed in dialogue with related areas of study such as music sociology ethnomusicology community psychology and health promotion Where Music Helps describes the emerging movement that has been labelled Community Music Therapy and it presents ethnographically informed case studies of eight music projects localized in England Israel Norway and South Africa The various chapters of the book portray music s help in action within a broad range of contexts with individuals groups and communities all of whom have been challenged by illness or disability social and cultural disadvantage or injustice Music and musicing has helped these people find their voice literally and metaphorically to be welcomed and to welcome to be accepted and to accept to be together in different and better ways to project alternative messages about themselves or their community and to connect with others beyond their immediate environment The overriding theme that is explored is how music comes to afford things in concert with its environments which may suggest a way of accounting for the role of music in music therapy without reducing music to a secondary role in relation to the therapeutic that is being just a symbol of psychological states a stimulus or a text reflecting socio cultural content

The Ethnographic Self as Resource Peter Collins,Anselma Gallinat,2010-05-01 It is commonly acknowledged that anthropologists use personal experiences to inform their writing However it is often assumed that only fieldwork experiences are relevant and that the personal appears only in the form of self reflexivity This book takes a step beyond anthropology at home and auto ethnography and shows how anthropologists can include their memories and experiences as ethnographic data in their writing It discusses issues such as authenticity translation and ethics in relation to the self and offers a new perspective on doing ethnographic fieldwork
