Wright, Rob Roy, 1987 Local and Regional Systems of Innovation John de la Mothe, Gilles Paquet, 2012-12-06

In an era of intense globalization the critical role of the region as a center for economic development has sometimes been overlooked. Moreover, innovation is increasingly being recognized as being a critical driver of economic growth and development. However, innovation is no longer being seen as a function of research and development nor is R D being seen as being sufficient for the creation of technology intensive industries and the valuable economic spillovers that result in high value added jobs and exports. Indeed, much more than ever before it is the combination of factors that contributes to innovation ranging over skills, finance, production, user-producer linkages, the capacity of organizations to learn and multilayered government policies that make local regions the favorites of fortune. Using an evolutionary economic perspective and drawing on a range of disciplines and accomplished scholars, Local and Regional Systems of Innovation explores important issues at a conceptual, methodological and comparative level concerning how successful locations actually construct their comparative advantage.

Mining Heritage and Tourism Michael Conlin, Lee Jolliffe, 2010-10-04. Many former mining areas have now lost their industrial function and are now turning to tourism for regional revitalization and community economic development. The transformation process of these industrial and in some cases derelict mining sites and landscapes into an area of interest for tourists is a major challenge both for planners and for tourism managers. It involves complex consideration to both the preservation of the physical site and community mining heritages as well as the health, safety and environmental factors inherent in opening these vast sites to the public. Mining Heritage and Tourism includes contributions from internationally recognized authorities and is the first book to focus on the issues, challenges and potentials in redeveloping mines as cultural heritage attractions which are explored thematically throughout the book It draws on multidisciplinary research to consider the dichotomy between heritage preservation and tourist development goals for mining heritage sites as well as to explore the practical challenges of developing these sites These themes are illustrated by case studies from a vast range of geographical locations around the globe to offer operational insights into the planning and management of these sites for both heritage and tourism purposes as well as innovative site management techniques There has never before been a more comprehensive book on mining heritage tourism representing the latest developments in strategy policy and practices This book serves as an invaluable guide for students researchers academics and practitioners in the areas of Tourism and Heritage Management
