Shadows In The Soil Human Bones And Archaeology:

Shadows in the Soil Tony Waldron,2001 In explaining what the archaeologist can reliably deduce about past societies from the study of bones and other human remains Dr Tony Waldron carefully avoids over technical jargon He covers the subject under the three headings of Life Death and Disease He explains first that bones give us information about age sex height weight working life and the demography of a society We also learn of the causes of death whether natural or intentional and the evidence for a whole range of diseases from aching joints and teeth to infectious diseases such as tuberculosis and syphilis

Shadows in the Soil Tony Waldron,2001 The Archaeology of Childhood Güner Coşkunsu,2015-11-16 Children existed in ancient times as active participants in the societies in which they lived and the cultures they belonged to Despite their various roles and in spite of the demographic composition of ancient societies where children comprised a large percentage of the population children are almost completely missing in many current archaeological discourses To remedy this The Archaeology of Childhood aims to instigate interdisciplinary dialogues between archaeologists and other disciplines on the notion of childhood and children and to develop theoretical and methodological approaches to analyze the archaeological record in order to explore and understand children and their role in the formation of past cultures Contributors consider how the notion of childhood can be expressed in artifacts and material records and examine how childhood is described in literary and historical sources of people from different regions and cultures While we may never be able to reconstruct every last aspect of what childhood was like in the past this volume argues that we can certainly bring children back into archaeological thinking and research and correct many erroneous and gender biased interpretations

Deviant Burial in the Archaeological Record Eileen M. Murphy, 2008-08-19 This edited volume contains twelve papers that present evidence on non normative burial practices from the Neolithic through to Post Medieval periods and includes case studies from some ten countries It has long been recognised by archaeologists that certain individuals in a variety of archaeological cultures from diverse periods and locations have been accorded differential treatment in burial relative to other members of their society These individuals can include criminals women who died during childbirth unbaptised infants people with disabilities and supposed revenants to name but a few Such burials can be identifiable in the archaeological record from an examination of the location and external characteristics of the grave site Furthermore the position of the body in addition to its association with unusual grave goods can be a further feature of atypical burials The motivation behind such non normative burial practices is also diverse and can be related to a wide variety of social and religious beliefs It is envisaged that the volume will make a significant contribution towards our understanding of the complexities involved when dealing with non normative burials in the archaeological record
