

MODERNIZATION AND POLITICAL CHANGE

The Latin American and Amer-European Nations

ARTHUR S. BANKS

ARTHUR S. BANKS is currently working on a multivariate analysis of cross-national time-series data under a grant from the National Science Foundation. He is Associate Professor of Political Science and Director of the Center for Comparative Political Research of the State University of New York at Binghamton. He is author (with Robert B. Textor) of A Cross-Polity Survey.

A DECADE has now passed since the publication of Seymour M. Lipset's (1969) seminal article, "Some Social Requisites of Democracy." As in the case of most such efforts to chart a new course in behavioral science, the article earned its author both praise and criticism—praise for what he was attempting to do, criticism (both conceptual and methodological) for the manner of its execution (see Cutright, 1963). The present paper reports on research that represents, in part, a return to Lipset's earlier terrain, namely, a comparison between the Latin American and Amer-European nations, as measured by longitudinal indices both political and "developmental" in character. The indicators upon which the present research is based differ, however, from those employed by Lipset. The political indicators were selected with reference to problems of change, rather than of legitimacy, while the remainder (a set of transportation and communications measures) relate to what may be termed technological modernization, rather than to Lipset's "economic development."¹ The principal purpose of the study is to assess the relative homogeneity of (hence the relative "distance" between) the two groups of nations, along the dimensions indicated, for a series of thirteen data points

AUTHOR'S NOTE: Research for this paper has been supported by the National Science Foundation under grant GS-2420.

Sigmund, 1970 Mexico the institutionalization of the revolution Bolivia the failure of the institutionalization of the revolution Cuba the revolution turns to communism Brazil The military vs the radical left Argentina the military vs peronism Venezuela the victory of constitutional democracy Colombia elite democracy in transformation Chile multiparty politics and democratic reform Models of Political Change in Latin America, Models of Political Change in Latin America Paul Eugene Sigmund (Jr.), Francisco Ignacio Madero, 1970 Political Change David E. Powelson, 2019-05-20 This bibliography of more than 2 000 titles contains both books and journal articles primarily those published since 1970 Most of the entries are annotated The material is classified according to forty eight categories and there is also a list of relevant titles for each major country in Africa Asia and Latin America Hong Kong's Tortuous Democratization Ming Sing, 2004 This book raises interesting questions about the process of democratization in Hong Kong It asks why democracy has been so long delayed when Hong Kong's level of socio economic development has become so high It relates democratization in Hong Kong to wider studies of the democratization process elsewhere and it supplements the received wisdom that democracy was delayed because of colonial rule and by the opposition of China with new thinking for example that its quasi bureaucratic authoritarian political structure vested power in bureaucrats who refused to have top down democratization a politically weak civil society and a non participant political culture that crippled bottom up democratization plus the division between pro democratic civil society and political society

Political System and Change Ikuo Kabashima, Lynn T. Lindau, 2000-01-01 Does market liberalization promote democracy The accepted answer from scholars pundits and politicians alike has been yes However the contributors to this innovative study of market reforms and political change in Mexico and the People s Republic of China argue that this easy equation is not only empirically uncertain but methodologically flawed Using comparative contextual analysis the contributors carefully identify the elective affinities between these two very different polities to reveal key variables that determine how markets will affect democracy particularly law as the rudder of democracy and the role of political culture in civil society Arab National Media and Political Change Fatima El-Issawi, 2016-11-08 This book examines the evolution of national Arab media and its interplay with political change particularly in emerging democracies in the context of the Arab uprisings Investigated from a journalistic perspective this research addresses the role played by traditional national media in consolidating emerging democracies or in exacerbating their fragility within new political contexts Also analyzed are the ways journalists report about politics and transformations of these media industries drawing on the international experiences of media in transitional societies This study builds on a field investigation led by the author and conducted within the project Arab Revolutions Media Revolutions covering Libya Tunisia and Egypt Routledge Library Editions: Development Mini-Set J: Politics and International Relations Various, 2022-01-18 Routledge Library Editions Development will re issue works which address economic political and social aspects of development Published over more than four decades these books trace the emergence of development as one of the most important contemporary issues and one of the key areas of study for modern social science The books cover the most important themes within development and include studies of Latin America Africa

Democratisation in the Dr Congo from Joseph Mobutu to Joseph Kabila Hubert Kabasu Babu Katulondi, 2019-03-14 The Democratic Republic of Congo DRC has experienced one of the most complex meandering and uncertain democratisation processes in Africa In 2016 the third cycle of elections was not organised The Presidential Majority M P was accused of concocting an amendment of the constitution aimed at granting a third term to the incumbent President Joseph Kabila Furthermore the introduction of a Voting Machine by the electoral commission fuelled violent protests and a political impasse The DRC tittered on the brink of collapse into another civil war in 2016 Yet against all odds the Congolese electoral commission organised peaceful elections in December 2018 Stunningly the presidential election was won by the opposition A peaceful transfer of power at the helm of the state occurred for the first time in the country after 58 years of independence The DRC is now regarded as a model of political alternation in power in Central Africa The essay stems from the observation that predominant theorisations of Congolese politics fail to grasp the fecundity of the Congolese democratisation Most scholars and analysts tend to focus on the deficits and flaws inherent in Congolese politics Hence they are often oblivious to foundational strides accomplished in this process as it unfolded in the DRC This essay undertakes a modelled exploration of the democratisation process that unfolded in the DRC from the era of President Joseph Mobutu 1990 1997 to the dispensation of President Joseph Kabila 2001 2018 The effort utilises a paradigmatic framework to unravel the intricacies of a phenomenon occurring in a country which at first glance is often assumed to escape any ideal type To this effect the essay utilises Dr Samuel Huntington's Model of the Third Wave of Democratisation It elucidates the causes patterns problems and prospects of furthering this process in the DRC The book proposes a dialectical approach propounding the possibility of the consolidation of democratisation in the DRC

Political Conflict and Development in East Asia and Latin America Richard Boyd, Galjart Benno, Tak-Wing Ngo, 2007-01-24 Long run processes of socio economic change generate prodigious problems of social conflict and social control and governments responsible for these processes must therefore manage the resultant conflict Consequently the success or failure of a government's management of such conflicts is a crucial factor in development outcomes This volume investigates the political struggle for development specifically in two vital regions East Asia and Latin America This analysis calls into question the dominant emphasis on institutional and cultural bases for stable growth A careful historical account of the two regions is presented which permits the rigorous testing of conventional wisdoms regarding development Of importance to a broad range of academics in the spheres of development studies politics political economy and sociology this book will also make an interesting read for those with a general interest in these areas

Political Culture, Political Science, and Identity

Politics Howard J. Wiarda, 2016-04-08 Political Culture defined as the values beliefs and behavioral patterns underlying the political system has long had an uneasy relationship with political science Identity politics is the latest incarnation of this conflict Everyone agrees that culture and identity are important specifically political culture is important in understanding other countries and global regions but no one agrees how much or how precisely to measure it In this important book well known Comparativist Howard J Wiarda traces the long and controversial history of culture studies and the relations of political culture and identity politics to political science Under attack from structuralists institutionalists Marxists and dependency writers Wiarda examines and assesses the reasons for these attacks and why political culture went into decline only to have a new and transcendent renaissance and revival in the writings of Inglehart Fukuyama Putnam Huntington and many others Today political culture now updated to include identity politics stands as one of these great explanatory paradigms in political science the others being structuralism and institutionalism Rather than seeing them as diametrically exposed Howard Wiarda shows how they may be made complementary and woven together in more complex multicausal explanations This book is brief highly readable provocative and certain to stimulate discussion It will be of interest to general readers and as a text in courses in international relations comparative politics foreign policy and Third World studies
