War and Nationalism in South Asia Marcus Franke, 2009-01-21 This book presents and analyses the oldest sub national war of postcolonial South Asia between the Indian state and the Nagas of Northeast India. It offers a serious and thorough political history on the Naga region over three periods: pre colonial, colonial, and post colonial. Drawing on a wealth of primary sources and comparative and theoretical literature, Marcus Franke demonstrates that agency and identity formation are an on going process that neither started nor ended with colonialism. Although the interaction of the local population with colonialism produced a Naga national identity, it was the emergence of the Indian political class with access to superior means of nation and state building that was able to undertake the modern Indo Naga war. This war firmly made the Nagas into a nation and that set them onto the road to independence. War and Nationalism in South Asia fundamentally revises our understanding of the existing histories of the Nagas by exposing them to be influenced by colonial or post colonial narratives of domination. Furthermore, by placing the region into the longue durée of state formation with its involved technique of imperial rule, the book presents a new approach to the study of nationalism and war in South Asia in general. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of politics, history, anthropology, and South Asian studies.

Decolonization in South Asia Sekhar Bandyopadhyay, 2009-06-03. This book explores the meanings and complexities of India's experience of transition from colonial to the post colonial period. It focuses on the first five years from independence on 15th August 1947 to the first general election in January 1952 in the politics of West Bengal, the new Indian province that was created as a result of the Partition. The author, a specialist on the history of modern India, discusses what freedom actually meant to various individuals, communities, and political parties; how they responded to it; how they extended its meaning; and how, in their anxiety to confront the realities of free India, they began to invent new enemies of their newly acquired freedom. By emphasising the representations of popular mentality rather than the institutional changes brought in by the process of decolonization, he draws attention to other concerns and anxieties that were related to the problems of coming to terms with the newly achieved freedom and the responsibility of devising independent rules of governance that would suit the historic needs of a pluralist nation. Decolonization in South Asia analyses the transitional politics of West Bengal in light of recent developments in postcolonial theory on nationalism, treating the nation as a space for contestation rather than a natural breeding ground for homogeneity in the complex political scenario of post independence India. It will appeal to academics interested in political science, sociology, social anthropology, and cultural and Asian studies.

The Politics of Nuclear Weapons in South Asia Dr Bhumitra Chakma, 2013-04-28. An important and critical re-evaluation of South Asia's post tests nuclear politics. In contrast to other books, this volume emphasises the political dimension of South Asia's nuclear weapons, explains how the bombs are used as politico-strategic assets rather than pure battlefield weapons, and how India and Pakistan utilise them for politico-strategic purposes in an extremely complex and competitive South Asian strategic landscape. Written by a group of perceptive observers of South Asia, this volume evaluates the current state of Indo-Pakistani nuclear deterrents, the challenges that the two countries confront in building their nuclear forces, the post test nuclear doctrines of the two strategic
