modern urban history of Tehran during the Cold War period 1945-1979. The book while arguing about the institutionalism of modernity in the form of modern middle class housing in Tehran shows how vernacular archetypes found their way into the construction of new neighborhoods. The trajectory of ideal modernism towards popular modernism, the introduction of modern taste to traditional society through architects while tracing the path of transnational models in local projects are all subjects extensively expounded by Rana Habibi through engaging graphical analyses and appealing theoretical interpretations involving five modern Tehran neighborhoods.

Modernism and the Middle East Sandy Isenstadt, Kishwar Rizvi, 2011-03-01. This provocative collection of essays is the first book length treatment of the development of modern architecture in the Middle East. Ranging from Jerusalem at the turn of the twentieth century to Libya under Italian colonial rule, postwar Turkey and on to present day Iraq, the essays cohere around the historical encounter between the politics of nation building and architectural modernism's new materials, methods and motives. Architecture as physical infrastructure and as symbolic expression provides an exceptional window onto the powerful forces that shaped the modern Middle East and that continue to dominate it today. Experts in this volume demonstrate the political dimensions of both creating the built environment and subsequently inhabiting it. In revealing the tensions between achieving both international relevance and regional meaning, Modernism in the Middle East affords a dynamic view of the ongoing confrontations of deep traditions with rapid modernization. Political and cultural historians as well as architects and urban planners will find fresh material here on a range of diverse practices.

Language Policy and Nation-Building in Post-Apartheid South Africa Jon Orman, 2008-08-27. The preamble to the post apartheid South African constitution states that South Africa belongs to all who live in it, united in our diversity and promises to lay the foundations for a democratic and open society in which government is based on the will of the people and every citizen is equally protected by law and to improve the quality of life of all citizens. This would seem to commit the South African government to amongst other things the implementation of policies aimed at fostering a common sense of South African national identity at societal development and at reducing levels of social inequality. However in the period of more than a decade that has now elapsed since the end of apartheid there has been widespread discontent with regard to the degree of progress made in connection with the realisation of these constitutional aspirations. The limits to liberation in the post apartheid era has been a theme of much recent research in the fields of sociology and political theory e.g. Luckham 1998, Robins 2005a. Linguists have also paid considerable attention to the South African situation with the realisation that many of the factors that have prevented and are continuing to prevent effective progress towards the achievement of these constitutional goals are linguistic in their origin.

attention is drawn to globalization questions arise about the fate of the nation a political and social unit that for centuries has seemed the common sense way to organize the world In Nation Work Timothy Brook and Andr Schmid draw together eight essays that use historical examples from Asian countries China India Korea and Japan to enrich our understandings of the origin and growth of nations Asia provides fertile ground for this inquiry the volume argues because in Asia the history of the modern nation has been inseparable from global influences in the form of Western imperialism Yet while the impetus for building a modern national identity may have come from the need to fashion a favorable place in a world system dominated by Western nations those engaged in nationalist enterprises found their particular voices more often in relation to tensions within Asia than in relation to more generic tensions between Asia and the West With topics ranging from public health measures in nineteenth century Japan through textual scholarship of Tamil intellectuals the willful division of Korea s history from China s the development of China s cotton industry and the meaning of postnationalism for Chinese artists the essays reveal the fascinating array of sites at which nation work can take place This will be essential reading for historians and social scientists interested in Asia Timothy Brook is Professor of History Stanford University Andr Schmid is Assistant Professor of East Asian Studies University of Toronto
