Mombasa An African City:

Mombasa, an African City Harm J. De Blij, 1978 The African City Bill Freund, 2007-03-05 This book is comprehensive both in terms of time coverage from before the Pharaohs to the present moment and in that it tries to consider cities from the entire continent not just Sub Saharan Africa Apart from factual information and rich description material culled from many sources it looks at many issues from why urban life emerged in the first place to how present day African cities cope in difficult times Instead of seeing towns and cities as somehow extraneous to the real Africa it views them as an inherent part of developing Africa indigenous colonial and post colonial and emphasizes the extent to which the future of African society and African culture will likely be played out mostly in cities The book is written to appeal to students of history but equally to geographers planners sociologists and development specialists interested in urban problems Mombasa. An African City.

Harm J. de Blij. [Illustr.] Harm Jan de Bly, 1968 Representing the City Anthony D. King, 1996-02 Classic representations of the city have focused on simplistic urban dichotomies such as renewal or decline poverty or prosperity and vice or vigor We are left with the question of what actually constitutes a city and what makes it and its people succeed or fail Recent writing on the city however has begun to question the images metaphors and discourses through which the contemporary city is represented Discussing recent visual architectural and spatial transformations in New York and other major world cities in relation to the themes of ethnicity capital and culture Re Presenting the City moves between interpretive representations of the newly emerging metropolis and the theoretical and methodological questions raised by the task of such representations Contributors with backgrounds in urban planning sociology cultural studies architecture art history geography and philosophy reflect on the construction of both the real and the unreal city the images metaphors and discourses through which the contemporary city is represented and the texts which both mediate our experience of as well as contribute to producing the city of the future Urbanization, Urbanism, and Urbanity in an African City P.

Jenkins, 2013-12-17 Urbanization in sub Saharan Africa has historic roots and though it has accelerated in recent decades it retains distinctive forms This book explores sub Saharan urbanism through a detailed and wide ranging study of Maputo Mozambique covering physical and socio economic factors as well as an ethnographic inquiry into cultural attitudes

Making an African City Jennifer Hart, 2024-03-05 In Making an African City Jennifer Hart traces the way that British colonial officials Accra Town Council members and a diverse group of technocrats used regulation to define what an acceptable city looked like Unlike cities elsewhere on the continent Accra had a long history of urbanism that predated British colonial presence By criminalizing some activities and privileging others colonial officials sought to marginalize indigenous practices of Accra residents and shape the development of a new modern city Hart argues however that residents regularly pushed back protesting regulations refusing to participate in newly developed systems reappropriating infrastructure demanding rights to city services and asserting their own informal vision for the future of the city While urban plans and regulations ultimately failed to substantively remake the city their effects were and are still felt by urban residents who are often subject to but not served by urban infrastructure Making an African City explores how the informalization of Accra's development was a historical process not a natural and self evident phenomenon which connects the history of the city with the history of urban development and the growth of technocracy around the world Slavery and the Birth of an African City Kristin Mann,2007-09-26 As the slave trade entered its last illegal phase in the 19th century the town of Lagos on West Africa's Bight of Benin became one of the most important port cities north of the equator Slavery and the Birth of an African City explores the reasons for Lagos's sudden rise to power By linking the histories of international slave markets to those of the regional suppliers and slave traders Kristin Mann shows how the African slave trade forever altered the destiny of the tiny kingdom of Lagos This magisterial work uncovers the relationship between African slavery and the growth of one of Africa's most vibrant cities Food, Culture, and Survival in an African City K. Flynn,2016-09-27 A rich ethnographic portrait of food provisioning processes in a contemporary African city offering valuable lessons about the powerful roles of gender migration exchange sex and charity in food acquisition Based on anthropologist Karen Coen Flynn's study of Mwanza Tanzania this work draws on the personal accounts of over 350 market vendors low middle and high income consumers urban farmers as well as those including children who live on the streets This strikingly original work offers interdisciplinary appeal to a broad audience of both students and professionals interested in anthropology African studies urban studies gender studies and development economics Borderlands in World History, 1700-1914 P. Readman,C. Radding,C. Bryant,2014-05-20 Covering two hundred years this groundbreaking book brings together essays on borderlands by leading experts in the modern history of the Americas Europe Africa Asia and Australia to offer the first historical study of borderlands with a global reach The Management of Urban Development in Zambia Emmanuel Mutale,2017-11-30 Over the past few decades the developing world has seen unprecedented urban growth and urban areas have had to deal with a number of complex problems as a result While population growth is one of the factors contributing to the deprivation and decay characteristic of most urban areas in the developing world there are other factors Apart from demographic and economic factors the political organization factor of centralization has concentrated decision making and with it resources in the urban areas leading to further rural urban migration Another factor is one of colonialism The transfer of foreign social structures and technology while offering alternatives has dislocated and significantly altered indigenous patterns of development in the developing world This book examines a region where this last factor is a major significance Zambia's copperbelt Here the concentration of towns which were developed very rapidly in the 1930s made Zambia one of the most highly urbanized Sub Saharan countries By focusing on copperbelt towns the book provides a critical analysis of the development of urban policy in Zambia Aspects of conflict and cooperation between different interest groups and where relevant their economic relationships are explored and a structural conflict model of urban management is proposed The book concludes that with proper management existing and emerging sectional interests in urban areas can help provide conditions which foster the formulation of equitable urban policy Although focused on Zambia the proposed structural conflict approach has potential for wider application Neighbours and Nationals in an African City Ward David J. Geography and Retailing Peter Scott, 2017-07-12 An important contribution to our understanding of the distribution of retail activities particularly within cities this book provides a critical review of the literature on the subject It points out the major general propositions concerning retailing from the geographical point of view and identifies key research problems which need to be examined in order to push forward the frontiers of this sub field of economic geography It presents a major critique of the central place model which has come to hold an important place in the methodology of economic geography and clearly and decisively shows the model to be static deterministic retrospective and of little value for predictive purposes as they voyage across the ocean on mechanized wooden sailing vessels known as vahans or dhows. These voyages produce capital through moorings that are spatial, moral, material, and conceptual. With a view from the dhow, the book examines the social worlds of Muslim seafarers who have been rendered invisible even as they maneuver multiple regulatory regimes and the exigencies of life navigating colonialism, neoliberalism, the rise of Hindutva, insurgency, climate change, and border regimes across the Indian Ocean. Based on historical and ethnographic research aboard ships, at ports and religious shrines, and in homes, Moorings shows how capitalism derives value from historically sedimented practices grounded in caste, gender, and transregional community-based forms of regulation.
