It is predicted that by 2050 22% of the world s population will be over 60 years of age

This rapid shift in demographics calls for the development of coherent and forward looking policies to address the many challenges which will inevitably arise as a result

This book presents 33 articles from the workshop jointly organized by APEC and OECD held in Waseda University Tokyo Japan in September 2012

At this workshop a group of international experts described a wide range of important issues associated with an aging population and discussed how both governments and the private sector can best mobilize innovation and research to transform this global challenge into an opportunity for active and productive aging and new sources of sustainable growth

The authors call for a comprehensive approach to achieve policy coherence as well as for strengthening public private partnerships and promoting collaboration among multiple stakeholders and systems

The book is divided into six chapters covering such subjects as lessons learnt from best practice solutions for the aging society policy initiatives health innovation smart communities and new services

Innovation will be necessary to meet the challenges and to mitigate the health social and economic impacts of an aging population worldwide as well as unlocking the potential of ICTs through increased research and new models

This book will be of interest to all those whose work involves the development of new services for older people in sectors such as health and nursing care education and training transportation community development and smart cities among others

Rose Arny,2002 The Financial Problems of the Elderly

Victor R. Fuchs,2001

A holistic approach to the financial problems of the elderly focuses simultaneously on their expenditures that are self financed as well as those that are financed by transfers from the young under age65

It also focuses simultaneously on paying for health care and paying for other goods and services

The income and health care expenditures not paid from personal income provides a useful framework for empirical application of the holistic approach In 1997 approximately 35 percent of the elderly s full income was devoted to health care 65 percent to other goods and services Approximately 56 percent of full income was provided by transfers from the young and 44 percent by the elderly themselves The paper shows how these percentages might change under alternative assumptions about the growth of health care relative to other goods and services and the effect of these changes on the need for more saving and more work prior to retirement Advancing Aging Policy as the 21st Century Begins Francis G Caro,Jill Norton,Robert Morris

Deceased,2023-04-28 By the end of the current decade many baby boomers will be senior citizens What policies should we enact to prepare for an aging society In the coming decade we have a unique opportunity to create new and better aging policies This collection of twenty essays by prominent educators researchers and policy analysts in the field of gerontology brings together innovative ideas from the United States Europe and Japan Instead of focusing on utopian dreams these exciting proposals are based on policy changes that may well be attainable in the next ten years The vital concerns addressed in Advancing Aging Policy as the 21st Century Begins include work and retirement issues the aging prison population long term care Latino elders transportation death and dying issues and the aging of the baby boom generation Advancing Aging Policy as the 21st Century Begins explores innovative policies and care arrangements around the world the importance of a strong economy that provides opportunities for seniors who seek them and support for those who need it the need for flexible retirement and employment policies for older adults the connections between family policy and aging policy the importance of improving training and compensation for workers in long term care the special needs of our diverse and rapidly growing population of older people the importance of focusing aging policy on people rather than on programs This forward looking book on policy and aging in the coming decade puts the experience and insight of leaders in the field from around the world in your hands Policymakers educators and students of gerontology will find it an invaluable resource Handbook of
