Policies On Imports From Economies In Transition:

Policies on Imports from Economies in Transition Peter D. Ehrenhaft, 1997-01-01 Over the past 15 years the availability of cheap and convenient microcomputers has changed the collection methods and analysis of household survey data in developing countries making the data available within months rather than years Simultaneously analysts have become more interested in exploring ways in which such data may be used to inform and improve the steps involved in policymaking This book reviews the analysis of household survey data including the construction of household surveys the econometric tools that are the most useful for such analysis and a range of problems in development policy for which the econometric analysis of household surveys is useful and informative The author's approach remains close to the data relying on transparent econometric and graphical techniques to present the data so that policy and academic debates are clearly informed The author illustrates the analysis through examples of policy issues from several countries including Cote d'Ivoire India Pakistan Taiwan China and Thailand Two introductory chapters discuss the content and construction of surveys as well as the econometric methods that can be used with survey data Survey design and sampling are covered in some detail as are the effect of survey design on the calculation of statistics and the estimation of parameters A chapter on econometrics explores issues such as heteroskedasticity sample selection and instrumental variables Four chapters focus on poverty and inequality demand analysis and intrahousehold allocation price and tax reform and savings Each chapter presents a self contained development of the topic introduces the important empirical issues and provides substantive results The book also includes the computer code used to calculate the results so that readers can adapt the methods to yield similar results for other data

Russian Trade Policy Reform for WTO Accession Harry G. Broadman, 1998-01-01 Russia has manifested considerable interest in accession to the World Trade Organization WTO This volume contains four policy papers that focus on the most prominent topics during the ongoing WTO accession process 1 the dispersion of Russia's tariff structure 2 trade and investment in the service sectors 3 the treatment of state trading enterprises and 4 the policy regime governing foreign direct investment Bringing the Russian Federation into the rules based WTO system is an objective broadly shared by the world community Accession to the WTO comes at a critical juncture for the Russian government to focus on many important policy issues to stimulate growth As part of the process of making liberalization commitments as required by the existing members of the WTO accession provides an opportunity to lock in reforms

Economic Transition in the Middle East Heba Ahmad Handoussa, 1997 Is there a new development paradigm This volume brings together a number of studies on the major issues of adjustment as they apply to countries of the Middle East and North Africa MENA The authors draw on economic political and institutional theory in order to appraise and compare the development models identify the determinants of sustained growth apply the new development concepts to the case of MENA countries and suggest viable options to reduce the political and social constraints to reform Four sets of issues are vividly highlighted throughout the book the issue of integration into the global economy and the speed with which foreign trade should be liberalized the issue of divestiture and the merits of following various privatization strategies the issue of state intervention in the context of liberalization and private sector orientation and the issue of democratization and the political economy of reform external regulatory policies would need to be made simultaneously over the medium term to effect a successful transition to a more competitive efficient and faster growing industrial sector

The Economic Transition in Myanmar After 1988 Kōichi Fujita, Fumiharu Mieno, Ikuko Okamoto, 2009 For many years Myanmar operated an inward looking economic system built on import substitution Ultimately this policy failed leaving behind inefficient state economic enterprises and widespread poverty Political unrest in 1988 led a newly installed military government to liberalize the economy opening it to foreign investment and private participation in trade This move towards a market economy was in line with world wide trends but political instability forced the country to follow a course different from neighboring countries By analyzing economic policies and performance across the economic spectrum this book presents an overall picture of economic development in Myanmar between 1988 and the early 2000s The authors synthesize both macro and micro level data to overcome some of the limitations of unreliable national statistics and show how the government attempted to deal with two key issues it faced The first was how to reform the inefficient socialistic economic system in conformity with a market economy and the second was how to develop the agricultural and underdeveloped economy to alleviate mass poverty
