interrogates the intertwining of the local and the digital in environmental communication. It starts by introducing a wave metaphor to tease out major shifts in the field and situates the intersections of local places and digital networks in the beginning of a third wave. Investigations that feature the centrality of place and digital communication platforms show how we today as researchers and practitioners communicate the environment. Contributions identify the need for critical approaches that engage with the wider consequences of this changing media landscape, unpacking local and global tensions in environmental communication research. This empirical case study collection from different parts of the world shows that environmental activists and citizens creatively use digital technologies for campaign purposes. It identifies new environmental communication challenges and opportunities as well as practices of environmental activists, NGOs, citizens and local communities in the fight for social and environmental justice.

Political Economy of Media and Communication Joan Pedro-Carañana, Rodrigo Gómez, Thomas F. Corrigan, Francisco Sierra Caballero, 2024-02-01. The first book dedicated specifically to research methods in the political economy of media and communication, it provides a methodological toolkit to investigate the functioning of media technology and cultural industries in their historical, institutional, structural and systemic contexts. Featuring contributions from across the globe and a variety of methodological perspectives, this volume presents the state of the art in political economy of media and communication methods, articulating those methods with adjacent approaches to study concentration of ownership and power, pluralism and diversity, regulation and public policies, governance, genderization and sustainability. This collection charts the methodological innovations critical political economists are adopting to analyse a rapidly transforming digital media landscape, exploring ideology, narratives, socio analysis and praxis in communication with ethnographic and participatory approaches, as well as designs for quantitative and qualitative methods of textual discourse and content analysis, network analyses which consider power relations affecting communication, including intersectional oppressions and the new developments taking place in artificial intelligence. An essential text for advanced undergraduates, postgraduate students and researchers in the areas of media, cultural and communication studies, particularly those studying topics such as the political economy of media and or communication, media and communication theory and research methods.

With discussion of figures such as Jack Lindsay, C. L. R. James, Julian Stallabrass and Mike Wayne, as well as the cultural thinking of the New Left, Gramscian, Althusserian and Political Economy schools, this book shows that the history of British cultural
