Powell,2008 Examining portraits of black people over the past two centuries Cutting a Figure argues that these images should be viewed as a distinct category of portraiture that differs significantly from depictions of people with other racial and ethnic backgrounds The difference Richard Powell contends lies in the social capital that stems directly from the black subject's power to subvert dominant racist representations by evincing such traits as self composure self adornment and self imagining Powell forcefully supports this argument with evidence drawn from a survey of nineteenth century portraits in depth case studies of the postwar fashion model Donyale Luna and the contemporary portraitist Barkley L Hendricks and insightful analyses of images created since the late 1970s Along the way he discusses major artists such as Fr d ric Bazille John Singer Sargent James Van Der Zee and David Hammons alongside such overlooked producers of black visual culture as the Tonka and Nike corporations Combining previously unpublished images with scrupulous archival research Cutting a Figure illuminates the ideological nature of the genre and the centrality of race and cultural identity in understanding modern and contemporary portraiture National Union Catalog ,1981 National Union Catalog, 1981 ,1982

Bibliography ,1981 Transactions of the Royal Historical Society: Volume 22 Ian W. Archer,2013-01-03 A collection of major articles representing some of the best historical research by some of the world s most distinguished historians The Publishers' Trade List Annual ,1982 Realism after Modernism Devin Fore,2015-01-30 The paradox at the heart of the return to realism in the interwar years as seen in work by Moholy Nagy Brecht and others The human figure made a spectacular return in visual art and literature in the 1920s Following modernism s withdrawal nonobjective painting gave way to realistic depictions of the body and experimental literary techniques were abandoned for novels with powerfully individuated characters But the celebrated return of the human in the interwar years was not as straightforward as it may seem In Realism after Modernism Devin Fore challenges the widely accepted view that this period represented a return to traditional realist representation and its humanist postulates Interwar realism he argues did not reinstate its nineteenth century predecessor but invoked realism as a strategy of mimicry that anticipates postmodernist pastiche Through close readings of a series of works by German artists and writers of the period Fore investigates five artistic devices that were central to interwar realism He analyzes Bauhaus polymath L szl Moholy Nagy s use of linear perspective three industrial novels riven by the conflict between the temporality of capital and that of labor Brecht s socialist realist plays which explore new dramaturgical principles for depicting a collective subject a memoir by Carl Einstein that oscillates between recollection and self erasure and the idiom of physiognomy in the photomontages of John Heartfield Fore s readings reveal that each of these rehumanized works in fact calls into question the very categories of the human upon which realist figuration is based Paradoxically even as the human seemed to make a triumphal return in the culture of the interwar period the definition of the human and the integrity of the body were becoming more tenuous than ever before Interwar realism did not hearken back to earlier artistic modes but posited new and unfamiliar syntaxes of aesthetic encounter revealing the emergence of a human subject quite unlike anything that had come before Ghost in the Shell Robert A. Sobieszek,Los Angeles County Museum of Art,1999 Tracing the modern photographic portrait over the past 150 years the book reveals the many ways the photographic arts have investigated represented interpreted and subverted the human face and consequently the human spirit Subject Catalog Library of Congress,1981 An American Manufactory Laura N.
