Energy Policy Instruments and Technical Change in the Residential Building Sector M. Beerepoot,2007-11-28 Energy performance policy in the building sector such as is described by EU Directive known as EPBD has the aim of reducing energy consumption in buildings Given the importance of the development of innovations in energy technology and a transition to a sustainable energy supply system it is necessary that policy instruments for energy conservation in the building sector stimulate the development and diffusion of innovations This publication contributes to knowledge about the content of energy performance policy and concludes that the effect of energy performance policy in encouraging innovation is limited. The study of the innovation system of the Dutch construction industry identifies how the project based nature of the construction industry is an obstacle to learning rich collaboration between the various stakeholders. The study contributes to the discussion about the impact of government policy for energy conservation in the building sector in the context of climate change policy.

The Type V City Jeana Ripple, 2025-08-19 How building codes shaped material social and environmental landscapes in American cities. Almost every American city contains neighborhoods dominated by wood frame construction light cheap combustible and requiring the lowest upfront investment of labor and material in the building industry. Known as a Type V five construction in the terminology of building codes these buildings became ubiquitous in the American urban landscape thanks to the abundance of timber housing affordability aspirations and the adoption of a uniform code. In The Type V City Jeana Ripple examines the social and spatial history of building codes and material patterns in five cities New York Tampa Chicago Philadelphia and Seattle to reframe the stories of America's building priorities methods negotiations and assumptions. By examining the development of building materials and codes alongside the environmental social economic and political context of each city's development Ripple reveals previously overlooked connections between the power structures underpinning regulatory evolution and the impacts that lay just beyond the frame of city builders priorities. Handsomely illustrated and informed by both archival research and insights enabled by contemporary data analysis The Type V City critiques the homogenous construction practices underlying US urbanization and raises pointed questions for future generations of data driven city planners and architects.

Home in the City Alan B. Anderson, 2013-01-01 During the past several decades the Aboriginal population of Canada has become so urbanized that today the majority of First Nations and Métis people live in cities. Home in the City provides an in depth analysis of urban Aboriginal housing living conditions issues and trends. Based on extensive research including interviews with more than three thousand residents it allows for the emergence of a new contemporary and more realistic portrait of Aboriginal people in Canada's urban centres. Home in the City focuses on Saskatoon which has both one of the highest proportions of Aboriginal residents in the country and the highest percentage of Aboriginal people living below the poverty line. While the book details negative aspects of urban Aboriginal life such as persistent poverty health problems and racism it also highlights many positive developments the emergence of an Aboriginal middle class inner city renewal innovative collaboration with municipal and community organizations and more. Alan B. Anderson and the volume's contributors provide an important resource for understanding contemporary Aboriginal life in Canada.

Residential Building Design and Construction Jack H. Willenbrock, H. B. Manbeck, Michael G. Suchar, 1998 The technical presentation of the material is enriched with enough detail to be suitable for academic use in residential construction construction science construction management and building technology programs at universities and colleges while remaining clear enough to be a valuable resource for homebuilders and building code officials
