K. Singh,2008 Natural Resources is a highly interdisciplinary subject focused on understanding and managing the natural environment and its resources and on human interaction with our environment in order to provide for both the continued human use and existence of elements in the natural environment particularly wildlife fish and forests The most significant changes is seen in the governmental emphasis on area based approach for the management of natural resources There is increasing acceptance of participatory resource management by involving local communities officials non governmental organisations and other stakeholders This comprehensive text is the perfect reference for anyone involved in conservation and environmentally sound natural resources management Its introductory material is helpful to students as a learning tool and its in depth information makes this text a ready reference for professionals A Modern Concept of Resource Conservation Management in Agro-industrial Production Uladzimir Buts,2020-09-28 Resource Conservation and Management G. Tyler Miller (jr.),1990 Resource Conservation and Management Narendra Bahadur Khadka,2002 Nature Conservation and Resource Management for Human Welfare Ashwani Kumar Dubey,2017 The interest of man in nature goes back to his own origin and history From stone age to modern atomic age there has been a drastic change in the demands of man from the nature ranging from food and shelter to timber fuel medicines pulp and a variety of other products A sudden explosion in human population and multifarious need of man has put the existence of natural resources to a stake Majority of original natural resources have been reducing to secondary resources with low productivity hence the extent of wild area is also decreased significantly Earth is the only place in the universe known to sustain life Humanity s relationship with the biosphere will continue to deteriorate until a new international economic order is achieved a new environmental ethic adopted human populations stabilize and sustainable modes of development become the rule rather than the exception Among the prerequisites for sustainable development is the conservation of living resources the management of human use of the biosphere so that it may yield the greatest sustainable benefit to present generations while maintaining its potential to meet the needs and aspirations of future generations Thus conservation is positive embracing preservation maintenance sustainable utilization restoration and enhancement of the natural environment Living resource conservation is specifically concerned with plants animals and microorganisms and with those non living elements of the environment on which they depend Living resources have two important properties the combination of which distinguishes them from non living resources they are renewable if conserved and they are destructible if not

Environment and Natural Resource Conservation and Management in Mozambique Munyaradzi Mawere,2013 This is an eloquent engaged and extremely well informed narrative of the environmental and natural resource conservation and management issues in Mozambique While the topics in this volume are diverse they are all explicitly designed to move beyond the routinized blame of natural resource mismanagement and environmental degradation on local communities and to rethink ecosystem destruction land degradation and natural resource over exploitation in Africa and beyond Never losing sight of the major causes of environment and resource mismanagement in Mozambique the book advances the thesis that environment and resource problems are a result of compound factors such as poor governance poverty corruption low education levels and disregard of endogenous conservation epistemologies A combination of all these factors makes the whole terrain of conservation even more complicated than ever hence the need for urgent action by all social actors This is a valuable book for environmental conservationists land resource managers social ecologists environmental anthropologists environmental field workers and technicians practitioners and students of conservation sciences
