provides a thesis and a common narrative throughout the issue chapters The range of responses to manage global issues are compared and discussed throughout Global problems move at internet speed governments do not move so quickly This creates gaps in what citizens expect the state to do and what countries have the capacities to do This paradox is a problem not only for weak or failing states even the strongest states in the system struggle in how to effectively respond to global issues from cybersecurity to environmental toxins States cannot solve or manage trans sovereign issues alone The power of the private sector is growing both legal and illegal for profit and non profit while state power is flat or in some places declining While private sector actors have means to impact transnational issues they do not have a public mandate to do so Countries increasingly must learn how to play well with others this is easier said than done Attempts to manage global issues flow through three channels public sector responses private sector responses and mixed public private partnerships All three channels are explored throughout the book uniting the issue chapters in a common discussion of challenges and responses The conclusion presents lessons learned for theory and practice from managing global issues
