ADDRESSING THE ROOT CAUSES OF MIGRATION

IN GUATEMALA, Maily Lucia (above) lives with her mother and older sister. Before your love provided education for the women in her village, Maily's mother was unable to farm and use agriculture as a means to support her family. Your generous gift will help us reach farther so that children across Central America will have healthy, nutritious meals each day.

Across Central America, a host of factors are driving high levels of migration, especially among youth. Research indicates that grinding poverty and lack of economic opportunities are the major push factors, but violence and political instability are also key drivers of migration. Back-to-back hurricane systems Eta and Iota that followed similar destructive paths across the region in 2020, as well as the heavy toll of the COVID pandemic, have only further exacerbated the dire situation for many Central Americans.

But that's not the whole story.

IN EL SALVADOR, Williams (below, left), a 30-year-old father of two, was able to earn a diploma in cocoa production and has started his own chocolate business. Williams buys fermented cocoa beans, toasts, grinds and mixes them with sugar and spices to make a delicious product. His wife, Margarita, and their two children help to package the chocolates. The love of congregations like yours paid Williams' tuition expenses and now Williams can provide for his family.

IN HONDURAS, Dilia (above, right), 21, learned the basics of coffee cultivation and is working on her family's farm, hoping to become part of the next generation of agricultural entrepreneurs. Dilia watched many of her peers leave for urban areas in search of more stable income opportunities, but because of congregations like yours, Dilia is able to attend technical trainings and learn the skills she needs to remain home and be successful.

Both Williams and Dilia felt compelled to leave everything they had and knew in search of a better life, but the love and generosity of congregations like yours is restoring their hope for a future where they are now — a future where migration isn't their only option.

America at Risk Robert Perrucci, Carolyn C. Perrucci, 2009-06-15 In America at Risk The Crisis of Hope Trust and Caring Robert Perrucci and Carolyn C Perrucci identify the broad economic and technological changes that have led to the loss of high wage jobs declining opportunity and increased income and wealth inequality These changes have altered the way that Americans think about themselves their future and the lives of their children and neighbors Focusing on the erosion of trust hope and caring between and among Americans and their social institutions the authors confront the challenge by proposing policies that will build hope through jobs and wages in order to promote greater trust of institutions and more caring for the less fortunate Examining data from the past thirty year period Perrucci and Perrucci apply a critical sociological lens to view the dominant economic political and cultural institutions that have shaped the main social problems facing Americans They challenge Americans to act on behalf of their individual and collective interests by becoming informed and involved in developing new solutions to improve their lives

The Power of Hope Carol Graham, 2023-04-25 Why hope matters as a metric of economic and social well being In a society marked by extreme inequality of income and opportunity why should economists care about how people feel The truth is that feelings of well being are critical metrics that predict future life outcomes In this timely and innovative account economist Carol Graham argues for the importance of hope little studied in economics at present as an independent dimension of well being Given America's current mental health crisis thrown into stark relief by COVID hope may be the most important measure of well being and researchers are tracking trends in hope as a key factor in understanding the rising numbers of deaths of despair and premature mortality Graham an authority on the study of well being points to empirical evidence demonstrating that hope can improve people's life outcomes and that despair can destroy them These findings she argues merit deeper exploration Graham discusses the potential of novel well being metrics as tracking indicators of despair reports on new surveys of hope among low income adolescents and considers the implications of the results for the futures of these young adults Graham asks how and why the wealthiest country in the world has such despair What are we missing She argues that public policy problems from joblessness and labor force dropout to the lack of affordable health care and inadequate public education can't be solved without hope Drawing on research in well being and other disciplines Graham describes strategies for restoring hope in populations where it has been lost The need to address despair and to restore hope is critical to America's future

increasingly feel cynical about an intractable political system while hyper partisanship has dramatically shrank common ground and intensified the extremes Out of this deepening sense of political despair philosopher of education Sarah M Stitzlein seeks to revive democracy by teaching citizens how to hope Offering an informed call to citizen engagement Stitzlein directly addresses presidential campaigns including how to select candidates who support citizens in enacting and sustaining hope Drawing on examples from American history and pragmatist philosophy this book explains how hope can be cultivated in schools and sustained through action in our communities it describes what hope is why it matters to democracy and how to teach it This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4 0 International licence It is free to read at Oxford Scholarship Online and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations
