Technology presents the results of a NATO Advanced Research Workshop on educational systems design as a new educational technology. The objective of the workshop was to advance our knowledge about the comprehensive systems design approach for improving educational systems. The workshop was organized for the transdisciplinary interaction of three scientific groups representing design science, organizational systems science, and educational technology. Participants were selected based on their scholarship as members of one or more of these three groups. The book opens with the framing papers sent by the editors to participants prior to the workshop, then presents five sets of thematic contributions: the conceptual and empirical contexts of comprehensive systems design; the systems design focus; a systems view of designing educational systems; the educational context of systems design; and high technology focus in systems design. Resources in Education, 1994

Implementing School-based Management Harry P. Hatry, 1993 This report presents the findings and recommendations of an examination of the implementation of a major form of school-based management (SBM). It is based on case studies of the science and mathematics departments of 10 high schools and 9 middle or junior high schools in 12 school systems, almost all of which are urban school districts. The study found that implementation often falls short of the ideal. It did not find dramatic changes resulting from SBM. However, those schools and faculty members that took advantage of their added flexibility under SBM were able to achieve numerous small-scale improvements. The report provides a series of recommendations for school districts and individual schools to increase the likelihood of successful implementation of decentralization efforts such as SBM. The findings and recommendations cover such issues as 1) the extent of decentralization of budgeting, expenditure, and personnel decisions; 2) the role of site councils and department heads; and 3) communication and training needs. Appendixes list participating schools and districts and contain a literature review. Contains 117 references. Author SLD

Educational Administration in a Pluralistic Society Colleen A. Capper, 1993-07-01 In this bold, provocative supplemental text for the field of educational administration, Colleen Capper and contributors challenge administrators, policymakers, practitioners, and communities to confront the realities of schools and students in a pluralistic society. The book examines recent educational initiatives aimed at addressing the needs of students and staff from traditionally underrepresented groups marginalized on the basis of race, language, gender, sexual orientation, social class, or disability. Each chapter critically reviews the literature and research to probe the current characteristics of a nondominant group, including such information as its demographic characteristics, its role in school reform, its representation in organizational theory and behavior, its presence within curriculum and instruction, and its relationship with the school as community. Capper argues for the adoption of a multiparadigmatic framework from which to approach educational leadership for today's schools.
