Rethinking What Works With Offenders:

Rethinking what Works with Offenders Stephen Farrell, 2002 Rethinking What Works with Offenders Stephen Farrall, 2013-10-11 This important and original new book reports on a major investigation of the outcomes of probation supervision is concerned with the key question of what works in probation and comes at an important moment of change and development for the probation service in the UK Unlike previous studies which have relied mostly on official data this book makes use of over 200 interviews with men and women on probation and their supervising Probation Officers Rethinking What Works with Offenders has the following objectives to understand probation work from the perspectives of those who deliver it and those to whom it is delivered to study probation intervention as a whole in particular the probation order rather than specific aspects to locate probation work in the wider social contexts of those on probation to analyse how probation works and to reconceptualise probation outcomes in terms of degrees of success rather than as successful or unsuccessful to assess the policy implications of these conclusions This book presents an important and challenging range of findings on what works in probation and with offenders and will be essential reading for anybody professionally concerned with the present and future of probation raises central issues at a critical time for the reorganised National Probation Service based on extensive research including 200 interviews essential reading for anybody interested in what works in probation influences of socialization peer groups and the social and economic environment He highlights the value of understanding pathways to offending behaviour and the critical points at which choices are made Topics include Theoretical and empirical research foundations of criminogenic risk factors Theory turned into practice the development of offending behaviour programmes A psychological perspective on some core concepts in criminology retribution deterrence and incapacitation Major practical applications of psychology in policing prosecution and sentencing This authoritative and stimulating text is essential reading for students in criminology and psychology and for criminal justice practitioners and policy makers

than being subjected to verdicts based on vague unclear and uncertain principles In modern criminal law the imposition of criminal liability follows accurate and strict rules whereas there are no similar rules for the imposition of punishment The process of sentencing is vague and obscure as are the considerations used for the imposition of punishments The objective of the present book is to propose a comprehensive general and legally sophisticated theory of modern doctrinal sentencing The challenges of such a legal theory are plenty and complex In addition to increasing clarity and certainty modern doctrinal sentencing must deal with modern types of delinquency e g organized crime recidivism corporate offenders high tech offenses etc and modern principles of criminal law Modern doctrinal sentencing must serve to ensure optimal sentencing
