Contested Worlds Martin Phillips, 2017-09-29 Contested Worlds provides an introduction both to a multitude of geographical worlds which are currently being actively constructed and contested and to a range of different perspectives on these worlds being adopted and contested by geographers It is unique in its focus on the role of contestation in both the construction of geographical studies and in the geographies these studies seek to address These issues are explored through a combination of general theoretical discussion and detailed international case studies The areas discussed range in scale from the global through the regional and national to the local worlds of the inner city the neighbourhood and the village with connections drawn between these scales The book concludes that geography is being made in quite different ways It asserts that geography is intrinsically a contested enterprise and that this should be embraced as part of geographers becoming more critically involved in the making and studying of new contemporary human geographies

Guns and Utu Matthew Wright, 2011-08-01 So they went forth and they were given over to death by the guns Rangipito of Ngati Rahiri In the two decades before the Treaty of Waitangi New Zealand was ripped asunder by island spanning waves of warfare extreme violence and cannibalism Great war parties surged the length of the land to avenge historic grievances killing and burning as they went Whole peoples were uprooted and found new homes Despite the name given them by history one thing we can be certain about is that these dramatic conflicts were not simply musket wars This was an age of courage of heroism of great character and of astonishing deeds And they are not dead history Twenty first century New Zealand has been profoundly shaped by them not least in the location of most of the major cities In Guns and Utu historian Matthew Wright disputes the many mythologies of these wars examining some of the whys and wherefores of this generation long culture collision A spectacular book Don Rood Radio New Zealand National Only in Australia William Coleman, 2016-06-17 This edited volume is about the Australian difference and how Australia's economic and social policy has diverged from the approach of other countries. Australia seems to be following a special path of its own that it laid down more than a century ago. Australia's distinctive bent is manifested in a tightly regulated labour market, a heavy reliance on means testing and income taxation, a geographical centralization of political power combined with its dispersal amongst autonomous authorities and electoral singularities such as compulsory and preferential voting. In seeking to explain this Australian Exceptionalism, the book covers a diverse range of issues: the strength and weakness of religion, democratic and undemocratic tendencies, the poverty of public debate, the role of elites, the exploitation of Australian sports stars, the politics of railways, the backwardness of agriculture, deviation from the Westminster system, the original encounter between European and Aboriginal cultures, and the heavy taxation of tobacco. Bringing together contributions from economists, economic historians, and political scientists, the volume seeks to understand why Australia is different. It offers a range of explanations from the historical legacy to material factors, historical chance, and personalities.

The Penguin History of New Zealand Michael King, 2023-10-10 This bestselling book by the late Michael King is the unchallenged contemporary reference on the history of New Zealand. First published in 2003 and hailed as a triumph of careful research, wide reading, and judicious assessment, it has been continuously in print for 20 years and has sold over 300,000 copies. It remains the definitive yet highly readable starting point for anybody wanting to understand this country. New Zealand was the last country in the world to be discovered and settled by humankind. It was also the first to introduce full democracy. Between those events and in the century that followed, the movements and conflicts of human history have been played out more intensively and more rapidly in New Zealand than anywhere else on Earth. The Penguin History of New Zealand tells that story in all its colour and drama. The narrative that emerges is an inclusive one about men and women, Māori and Pākehā. It shows that British motives in colonising New Zealand were essentially humane, and that Māori, far from being passive victims of a fatal impact, coped heroically with colonisation and survived by selectively accepting and adapting what Western technology and culture had to offer. Now more relevant than ever, this edition includes a Foreword by Sir Tipene O'Regan and a biographical essay on the author by Jock Phillips.

Making Music at the Bottom of the World in Southland, Aotearoa/New Zealand Sally Bodkin-Allen, 2020-01-21 This volume brings together a number of perspectives on the musical landscape of Invercargill, a city at the bottom of Aotearoa New Zealand. Invercargill is in many ways unique; it is relatively isolated, its access to liquor is controlled by a licensing trust, and it is home to the longest serving mayor in Aotearoa. The musicking that occurs within Invercargill is surprisingly diverse and wide-ranging. This book acknowledges and explores many of the South's musical communities and, in doing so, illustrates the importance of music in local communities. It highlights the ways in which social connectedness local identity and individual lives are enriched through musical activities being interwoven through communities
