gentle revolution James Krapfl shifts the focus away from elites to ordinary citizens who endeavored from the outbreak of revolution in 1989 to the demise of the Czechoslovak federation in 1992 to establish a new democratic political culture Unique in its balanced coverage of developments in both Czech and Slovak lands including the Hungarian minority of southern Slovakia this book looks beyond Prague and Bratislava to collective action in small towns provincial factories and collective farms Through his broad and deep analysis of workers' declarations student bulletins newspapers film footage and the proceedings of local administrative bodies Krapfl contends that Czechoslovaks rejected Communism not because it was socialist but because it was arbitrarily bureaucratic and inhumane The restoration of a basic humanness in politics and in daily relations among citizens was the central goal of the revolution In the strikes and demonstrations that began in the last weeks of 1989 Krapfl argues citizens forged new symbols and a new symbolic system to reflect the humane democratic and nonviolent community they sought to create Tracing the course of the revolution from early idealistic euphoria through turns to radicalism and ultimately subversive reaction Revolution with a Human Face finds in Czechoslovakia's experiences lessons of both inspiration and caution for people in other countries striving to democratize their governments Slavic Review, 2000 American quarterly of Soviet and East European studies varies Book Review Index, 2006 Every 3rd issue is a quarterly cumulation The Book Review Digest, 2006

Japanese Political Culture Takeshi Ishida, This volume provides a perceptive background to modern Japanese culture Ishida attempts a balanced evaluation of modern Japan seeking to explain why the basic characteristics of Japanese society permit two almost opposite assessments He divides the development of modern Japan into two stages first the period starting from the Meiji Restoration 1868 up to the end of World War II second from the defeat of Japan in World War II up to the present Ishida investigates the essential features of the modern Japanese value system and the social structure which comprise both traditional and modern elements He examines how Japanese society has adapted Western influences to suit its own needs the real miracle of modern Japan As the Japanese economy grows and Japan becomes an economic superpower political self confidence is also emerging Ishida however remains critical of Japanese society because he feels that Japan lacked the internal resources to change the political system from within until its defeat by the Allies forced it to introduce various reforms ordered by the occupation authorities Despite the rapid changes taking place in Japanese society certain attitudes such as conformity and competition are common to both the prewar and postwar periods The final section is devoted to the field of peace research Ishida presents differences of meaning in the concepts of peace in ancient Hebrew Greek Roman Chinese and Indian cultures in order to characterize the Japanese concept of peace which akin to the Chinese emphasizes harmony rather than justice He goes on to discuss Japan s images of Gandhi which according to the author were projections of ultranationalist prejudice and missed the significance of his nonviolent direct action Ishida emphasizes the importance of such nonviolent action as a means to carry out social change toward the realization of justice
