The Body, Dance and Cultural Theory Helen Thomas, 2017-03-14 This book takes its point of departure from the overwhelming interest in theories of the body and performativity in sociology and cultural studies in recent years It explores a variety of ways of looking at dance as a social and artistic bodily practice as a means of generating insights into the politics of identity and difference as they are situated and traced through representations of the body and bodily practices These issues are addressed through a series of case studies

Dance Words Valerie Preston-Dunlop, 2016-01-28 In her unique collection of the verbal language of dance practitioners and researchers Valerie Preston Dunlop presents a comprehensive view of people in dance what they do their movement their sound and the space in which they work from the standpoint of the performers choreographers audiences administrators and teachers The words and phrases of their technical and vernacular languages which are used to communicate what is essentially a non verbal activity have been collected in rehearsal classes and workshops by interviews and from published sources In this first collection of its kind Valerie Preston Dunlop extends her selection of verbal language to include the various social and theatrical domains of dance

Older Widows and the Life Course Pat Chambers, 2018-01-18 Later life widowhood is the expectation of most older wives since statistically women live longer than men and tend to marry men older than themselves Despite this there has been little coverage of the complexities of later life widowhood In this book Pat Chambers redresses this balance combining an analysis of the literature that does exist with qualitative research amongst older widows The research reveals a multi faceted experience of later life widowhood Older widows life stories challenge the dominant public narrative of misery and decline pointing instead to a complexity of experience which is rooted in personal biography and the female life course rather than in later life widowhood itself Chambers develops the concept of multiple narratives as a way of uncovering the complex but often hidden lives of older widows Without such an understanding she argues it is all too easy to subscribe to the powerfully dominant public narrative and thus to misinterpret older widows current needs and aspirations This is an engaging and original study of a key topic for gerontological research and will be of great interest to sociologists and social policy scholars who study ageing and the life
