Office of Experimental Projects and Programs,1974 Emerging Syntheses In Science David Pines,2018-03-05 Evolution of self replicating macromolecules through natural selection is a dynamically ordered process Two concepts are introduced to describe the physical regularity of macromolecular evolution sequence space and quasi species Natural selection means localization of a mutant distribution in sequence space This localized distribution called the quasi species is centered around a master sequence or a degenerate set that the biologist would call the wild type The self ordering of such a system is an essential consequence of its formation through self reproduction of its macromolecular constituents a process that in the dynamical equations expresses itself by positive diagonal coefficients called selective values The theory describes how population numbers of wild type and mutants are related to the distribution of selective values that is to say how value topography maps into population topography For selectively nearly neutral mutants appearing in the quasi species distribution population numbers are greatly enhanced as compared to those of disadvantageous mutants even more so in continuous domains of such selectively valuable mutants As a consequence mutants far distant from the wild type may occur because they are produced with the help of highly populated less distant precursors Since values are cohesively distributed like mountains on earth and since their positions are multiply connected in the high dimensional sequence space the overpopulation of nearly neutral mutants provides guidance for the evolutionary process Localization in sequence space subject to a threshold in the fidelity of reproduction is steadily challenged until an optimal state is reached The model has been designed according to experimentally determined properties of self replicating molecules The conclusions reached from the theoretical models can be used to construct machines that provide optimal conditions for the evolution of functional macromolecules Scientific Thinking in Speech and Language Therapy Carmel Lum,2005-04-11 Speech and language pathologists like all professionals who claim to be scientific in their practice make a public commitment to operate on the basis of knowledge derived in accordance with sound scientific standards Yet students in communication disorders are given relatively little grounding in the fundamentals of science indeed they often receive implicit encouragement to rely on clinical wisdom This pathbreaking text introduces the principles of critical scientific thinking as they relate to assessing communication problems deciding about alternative approaches to intervention and evaluating outcomes The author provides many illustrative examples to help readers contextualize the ideas Her clear presentation will help not only undergraduate and graduate students but also established professionals reason more effectively about what they are doing and why Though the examples come from speech and language pathology this illuminating and readable book constitutes a valuable resource for all clinical practitioners British Qualifications Kogan Page,2004 In a single volume the new edition of this guide gives comprehensive coverage of the developments within the fast changing field of professional academic and vocational qualifications career fields their professional and accrediting bodies levels of membership and qualifications and is a one stop guide for careers advisors students and parents It should also enable human resource managers to verify the qualifications of potential employees Innovative Technologies and Learning Yueh-Min Huang,Chin-Feng Lai,Tânia Rocha,2021-11-23 This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 4th International Conference on Innovative Technologies and Learning ICITL 2021 held in November December 2021 Due to COVID 19 pandemic the conference was held virtually The 59 full papers presented together with 2 short papers were carefully reviewed and selected from 110 submissions The papers are organized in the following topical sections Artificial Intelligence in Education Augmented Virtual and Mixed Reality in Education Computational Thinking in Education Design Framework and Model for Innovative learning Education Practice Issues and Trends Educational Gamification and Game based Learning Innovative Technologies and Pedagogies Enhanced Learning Multimedia Technology Enhanced Learning Online Course and Web Based Environment and Science Technology Engineering Arts and Design and Mathematics
