Modernizing Legacy Systems:

Modernizing Legacy Systems Robert C. Seacord, Daniel Plakosh, Grace A. Lewis, 2003 Most organizations rely on complex enterprise information systems EISs to codify their business practices and collect process and analyze business data These EISs are large heterogeneous distributed constantly evolving dynamic long lived and mission critical In other words they are a complicated system of systems As features are added to an EIS new technologies and components are selected and integrated In many ways these information systems are to an enterprise what a brain is to the higher species a complex poorly understood mass upon which the organism relies for its very existence To optimize business value these large complex systems must be modernized but where does one begin This book uses an extensive real world case study based on the modernization of a thirty year old retail system to show how modernizing legacy systems can deliver significant business value to any organization

Modernizing Legacy Systems Robert C. Seacord, 2003 Legacy System Modernization Strategies Robert C. Seacord, 2001 Abstract Modernization of legacy enterprise systems introduces many challenges due to the size complexity and frailty of the legacy systems Size and complexity issues often dictate that these systems are incrementally modernized and new functionality is incrementally deployed before the modernization effort is concluded This in turn requires that legacy components operate side by side with modernized components in an operation system introducing additional problems In this report we discuss some alternative development approaches for incrementally modernizing legacy systems including consideration of the advantages and disadvantages of each approach These development alternatives can be mapped against the peculiarities of a particular modernization effort to recommend an appropriate approach
