Personhood Joseph Dumit,2021-09-14 By showing us the human brain at work PET positron emission tomography scans are subtly and sometimes not so subtly transforming how we think about our minds Picturing Personhood follows this remarkable and expensive technology from the laboratory into the world and back It examines how PET scans are created and how they are being called on to answer myriad questions with far reaching implications Is depression an observable brain disease Are criminals insane Do men and women think differently Is rationality a function of the brain Based on interviews media analysis and participant observation at research labs and conferences Joseph Dumit analyzes how assumptions designed into and read out of the experimental process reinforce specific notions about human nature Such assumptions can enter the process at any turn from selecting subjects and mathematical models to deciding which images to publish and how to color them Once they leave the laboratory PET scans shape social debates influence courtroom outcomes and have positive and negative consequences for people suffering mental illness Dumit follows this complex story demonstrating how brain scans as scientific objects contribute to our increasing social dependence on scientific authority The first book to examine the cultural ramifications of brain imaging technology Picturing Personhood is an unprecedented study that will influence both cultural studies and the growing field of science and technology studies

Science and Religion John F. Haught, 1995 Has science made religion intellectually implausible Does it rule out the existence of a personal God In an age of science can we really believe that the universe has a purpose And finally doesn't religion hold much of the blame for the present ecological crisis These questions form the nucleus of today's debate between science and religion This book is a guide for that debate identifying the questions isolating the issues and pointing to ways the questions can be resolved There are four possible ways says John F. Haught that we can view the relationship between religion and science First they can stand in complete opposition the conflict position Or we can believe they are so different that conflict is impossible the contrast position A third approach holds that while science and religion are distinct each has important implications for the other A fourth way views them as different but mutually supportive
