Pletcher,1984 Georgiana Molloy Alexandra Hasluck,2017-07-05 The story of a remarkable pioneer who discovered in the strange colonial wilderness the splendour and richness of Australia s unique flora In 1829 Georgiana Molloy moved from the middle class comfort of the English border country to an isolated wilderness on the opposite side of the world The young bride and her husband Captain John Molloy were among a small party that founded the settlement of Augusta on Western Australia s south west coast A pioneer of great courage and capacity Georgiana was presented with seemingly overwhelming trials and hardships But she was a woman who was never defeated by circumstance and never ceased to find enjoyment and satisfaction in her life One of her enduring legacies is her study and identification of much of the unique local flora A vivid portrait of an extraordinary woman Narrative Consciousness George H. Szanto,2014-09-10 Comparatively little critical attention has been devoted to narrative technique in modern fiction and formal analysis of the work of Kafka Beckett and Robbe Grillet in particular has for the most part been limited to short studies in journals many of these in languages other than English The criticism written in English has dealt primarily with theme with metaphysics and myth and ignored structure and style Yet it is structure and style that offer the reader a way into the often bewildering and disturbing fictional worlds these three writers present The problem confronting writers since the middle of the nineteenth century has been how to cope artistically with an increasingly alienating and mechanized world As George Szanto sees it Kafka Beckett and Robbe Grillet conclude by the example of their fictions that the writer's province is no longer this impossible environment Instead the writer must work within the only knowledge available to any one person the knowledge attained through perceptions The proper study for a storyteller is thus the search for the unique details the describable perceptions a person chooses from the outside world and brings into their mind which in the end define their nature The shape of the story is determined by the narrating consciousness that single character through whose awareness the details are filtered Thus in a very special sense the tale and the telling are one Szanto's meticulous and thoughtful study of the major fiction of Kafka Beckett and Robbe Grillet searches out these details and examines the manner in which each author through the minds of his characters has selected and ordered them His structural approach not only leads the reader directly into the works under scrutiny but also provides an understanding of the workings of the art itself In the appendices the author surveys the different ways in which criticism has treated these three writers His extensive bibliography provides a valuable research tool
