E. Hurworth, 2008-01-01 Over the past two decades there has been a plethora of book for students about how to tackle Qualitative Research QR but absolutely nothing on how to teach it This book attempts to redress the imbalance by presenting a history of what is known about QR teaching as well as to bring alive current QR teaching and learning through a set of Australian and British case studies Courses visited were located within a variety of disciplines including Education Sociology Anthropology Nursing Psychology Communications and Evaluation were taught by both experienced and inexperienced lecturers were either presented alone or in pairs took place in a range of institutions lasted from seven weeks to a year and involved from 15 to over 100 students It emerged however that no matter what the context several common issues were raised such as Should you teach theory practice or both How do you determine a curriculum for a QR course What is the best way to manage student projects How should students of QR be assessed In what ways can the constraints of University structures be confronted and How can lecturer deficiencies in training and experience be overcome To answer such questions Professor Hurworth draws deftly from personal observations and rich conversations with both lecturers and students from all the courses described As a result many practical ideas for moving the teaching and learning of QR forward are suggested
