Resources And Environment In Asias Marine Sector:

Resources & Environment in Asia's Marine Sector James B. Marsh, 2018-12-18 This volume brings together a cross section of marine experts who provide a comprehensive exploration of the major facets of Asia's marine sector. It considers both the marine mineral and fish stocks in Asian waters. This extensive volume examines official statistics with an objective eye and provides an overview of fish stock with much focus on the access and management of tuna. It considers global economic issues concerning fishing rights, looks at joint ventures between nations and considers law enforcement efforts. The volume devotes a section to sea lanes and another to off shore mineral deposits. It also considers current and growing problems and possible solutions regarding pollution. Peace and Security in Northeast Asia Peter Hayes, Young Whan Kihl, 2016-09-16 This work provides an analysis of North Korea's nuclear controversy from a variety of perspectives including nuclear reactor technology and technology transfer, economic sanctions and incentives, confidence building measures, environmental challenges and the views of Korea and the major powers. The Routledge Handbook of Environmental Economics in Asia Shunsuke Managi, 2015-02-11 Problems of climate change, biodiversity and air pollution are clearly growing globally but more particularly in Asia because of its economic importance and richness in nature. The increasing interest in environmental and resource economics applied in regions of Asia will make this book an outstanding resource to the existing literature particularly in the fields of environmental and resource economics and the integration of applied content in traditional and agricultural development. At present there is no single handbook or text on the state of current knowledge in environmental economics in Asia or one which offers a comprehensive guide to students and academics on the subjects of environmental economics research. This book will help to fill the gap in the existing literature. Environmental Change in South-East Asia Mike Parnwell, Raymond L. Bryant, 1996 Environmental Change in South East Asia brings together scholars, journalists, consultants and NGO activists to explore the interaction of people, politics and ecology. Ostensibly green activities, plantation forestry, eco tourism, hydro electricity are revealed as guises used by elites to promote their own political and economic interests. Highlighting fatal flaws in presently exclusive economic and ecological approaches, the authors stress that neither the quest for sustainable development nor the process of environmental change itself can be understood without reference to political processes. Japan's Tuna Fishing Industry Anthony Bergin, Marcus G. Haward, 1996 The Environment and Emerging Development Issues Partha Dasgupta, Karl-Göran Mäler, 2000 Two and a half billion people are affected directly on a day to day basis by the allocation and use of purely local resources. Yet official development economics has concentrated on headline international issues and only recently begun to take account of the dependence of poor countries on their natural resources, the link between acute poverty and environmental degradation and the problems associated with the management of local common property such as soil and soil cover, water, forests and their products, animals and fisheries. In this volume part of the WIDER Program on the Economics of the Environment, expert contributors provide a set of authoritative studies of emerging development issues ranging from foundational matters to case studies original research in areas where there has been a paucity of work to survey papers They address both analytic and empirical issues on the role of environmental resources in the development process presenting explanations of existing situations and policies for the future A wealth of interests and backgrounds is represented and reflected in the cross fertilization between papers
