

Before the really cold weather brought ice to our rink, we played road hockey right on Main Street in front of the Red & White store. Pieces of firewood or old overshoes marked our goals. We didn't have streetlights, and sometimes after dark we'd play by the light spilling from the store windows.

Often, on stormy days, Mom let us play inside with a soft ball of sponge rubber.

As time went by, we became more and more impatient for the day when we could play real hockey.
