Radical Inclusive Education Anat Greenstein, 2015-06-12 Many people who work in education start out with enthusiastic ideals about education as a positive force that can spur change in the life of the learner and in society at large yet find themselves frustrated with a bureaucratic system that often alienates and excludes many of its students This is particularly true for students identified as having special educational needs SEN or disability a label often used to justify the ways in which students are failed by a system that focuses on narrow definitions of knowledge seeks to normalise and control behaviour and values economic productivity over other forms of human activity Radical Inclusive Education explores how current educational practices such as standardised tests and league tables exclude and fail many disabled students and naturalise educational inequalities around gender class ethnicity and ability Informed by the social model of disability the book argues that educational theories and practices that are geared towards social justice and inclusion need to recognise and value the diversity of human embodiments needs and capacities and foster pedagogical practices that support relations of interdependency The book draws on work in disability studies critical psychology and critical pedagogy and also real life examples from interviews with activists in the disabled people's movement and from research in a school to offer examples of what radical inclusive education that is sensitive to the needs of all students might look like in practice As such it will be of great interest to practitioners and students in the field of education particularly for those interested in SEN and disability sociology of education critical pedagogy informal education and social movement learning Work and Idleness Jane

Wheelock, John Vail, 2012-12-06 Work and Idleness develops the view that redistributing employment is a feasible capitalist solution not just to the unemployment which particular groups suffer but also to the work that others have to contend with including many women Putting the redistribution of employment on the policy agenda opens up debate on how to ensure a more equitable and fulfilling relationship between the ways we gain our livelihoods and the lives we lead Growing insecurity in labour markets and changing patterns in the commodification of labour have led to a redistribution of paid and unpaid labour time as the structure of power relations the gender order discrimination and state regulation have been modified The first main trend affecting insecurity is mass unemployment and the growth of workless households A second notable trend is a gender based redistribution of hours worked The third major trend is a shift from full time waged work to full time self employment Part I of this book presents the main economic theories driving the continuing divide between the intensification of work and the extension of idleness Part II documents the ways in which the shift to mass idleness in advanced industrial countries has hit some groups particularly hard the youngest and oldest age groups and other groups including disabled workers have traditionally been subject to discrimination in the labor markets Part III provides a set of policy prescriptions

Project Management by ICB4 - IPMA Bert Hedeman, Roel Riepma, 2023-09-21 IPMA observes an increasing number and importance of projects in business public and people's lives also known as projectification In the world of globalisation an increasing number of organisations are working project based to cope with the challenges of modern times Especially now society is on the brink of such significant changes as global warming and artificial intelligence Projects drive the development of new products and services expansions new capabilities implementation of new strategies and new generations of infrastructure and major maintenance and upgrade of existing facilities and infrastructure This book provides a knowledge base for developing individual competencies for managing projects as described in the IPMA Individual Competence Baseline version 4 which encompasses Perspective competencies People competencies Practice competencies As projects become increasingly important we must continue to realise that projects begin and end with people and that their competent performance within the broader context of the environment is at the heart of any successful project In this book theories and practices for all ICB4 competencies are described They are logically sequenced explained and enriched with practical approaches which can be learned and applied in the daily project management practice As such it aligns entirely with IPMA's vision to strengthen competence across society to enable a world in which all projects succeed This book also supports obtaining an IPMA certificate as proof of your competence in projects

Action Research in Organisations Jean McNiff, Jack Whitehead, 2002-01-04 The current orthodoxy is that knowledge is the most powerful resource for organisational success So how can managers develop the appropriate knowledge base to make their organisations grow The answer lies in action research Action research is increasingly perceived and used as a powerful methodology to promote professional awareness and development However there are very few texts that demonstrate how this can be utilised to promote management and organisational improvement or that emphasise the reflective nature of improving professionalism Action Research in Organisations fills this gap Aimed at both practising managers and university students alike key features of this title include the location of management and organisational theory within a framework examination of the principles and practice of action research real world examples and case studies of people attempting to improve their own situations through action research

Politics and Old Age: Older Citizens and Political Processes in Britain John A. Vincent, Guy Patterson, Karen Wale, 2024-11-01 This title was first published in 2001 Older people have been characterized by two mutually contradictory stereotypes On the one hand they have been portrayed as a powerful lobby growing demographically and able to demand large redistributions of the nation's income in their direction On the other hand they have been typified as a marginalized group at high risk of poverty and exclusion and in a political context largely powerless This book examines using original research conducted by the Older People and Politics Project OPPOL within Exeter University's Sociology Department the reality of the impact of the increasing number of older people on the British political process The project had three main investigative concerns how effective are pressure groups and lobbyists for older people how is the power and influence of older people perceived by older people themselves and the general public and how are politicians responding to older people and their needs

The Transformation of Capacity in International Development Avideh K. Mayville, 2019-11-30 The Transformation of Capacity in International Development exposes the transformation of capacity within the development discourse through a discursive analysis of USAID projects in Afghanistan and Pakistan between 1977 and 2017 As development agendas increasingly call for human rights approaches to development and the foreign policies of donor states sound alarms over global security threats capacity development has emerged as the solution to the complex problem of development Through this examination of USAID's attempts to build capacity in Afghanistan and Pakistan the book exposes how Western notions of progress constructed by institutions government officials scholars and private sector actors are obscured by the transformation of capacity As agendas are translated into projects they perpetuate historical relationships of global inequality that have corrupted and compete with indigenous models of governance The Transformation of Capacity in International Development has implications for those considering the future of human rights based approaches to development the international management of global security threats and the sustainability of donor investments

Prospects for Adaptive and Sustainable Livelihoods for the Indigenous Peoples of Africa Costantinos Berhutesfa, 2024-12-20 Beginning in the early 1990s Africa has been experiencing a major ground swell of social economic and political changes An array of declarations and communiqués notwithstanding the crisis has forced indigenous peoples to become chronically dependent on international charity This is one of the greatest tragedies of the 21st century This book is a result of research conducted across Africa beginning in 2003 that was invaluable in understanding the conditions and views of indigenous peoples who are the victims rather than the beneficiaries of land grabbing and infrastructure development The book highlights the impediments to the livelihoods that indigenous peoples had developed over centuries brought about by political change. It also proposes various local and regional actions to mitigate this which aim to simultaneously enhance climate resilience, productivity and access to adequate stocks, goods and services.
