

LIFE PRIORITIES

DEFINITION

Life priorities are the values and activities that individuals deem most important in their lives. They guide decision-making, influence behavior, and shape one's overall life trajectory. These priorities can vary widely among individuals based on personal beliefs, experiences, and goals.

EXAMPLES

- Family and Relationships: Building and maintaining strong bonds with loved ones can provide emotional support and enrich life experiences.
- Career and Passion: Pursuing a meaningful career or passion can provide purpose and a sense of accomplishment.

Work and Family--Allies or Enemies? Stewart D. Friedman, Jeffrey H. Greenhaus, 2000-06-22 We've come a long way since the classic book The Organization Man first introduced the ideal 2 person career a full time male breadwinner and a stay at home wife What typified the 50s good life is in stark contrast to contemporary reality 63% of all married women with children under six years old are in the workforce and 40% of all workers are part of a dual earner couple Work and Family Allies or Enemies offers a fresh new lens for viewing the real struggles that business professionals face in their daily battle to find ways of getting a life and having it all Based on a pioneering study that surveyed more than 800 business professionals this volume will help readers understand and deal with the effects of gender professional culture and social expectations on the evolving roles of men and women in crafting an integrated life A rich inspiring and at times disturbing look at how work and family affect the lives of men and women trying to manage the complexities of modern living the authors argue that it is critical to learn how to manage the boundaries between work and family to handle ambiguity to manage multiple tasks simultaneously and to build networks of support at work and in the community Work and Family Allies or Enemies offers a prescription for success that requires that all parties individuals employers and society clarify what is important recognize and support the whole person and continually experiment with new ways to achieve meaningful goals

Gaining The Dividends Of Longer Life Jarold A. Kieffer, 2019-04-08 Not all older people are unfit for work Indeed most people over age 55 remain physically and mentally able to work and rather than suffer the pressures of inflation or the boredom of idleness many would prefer to stay productive longer Dr Kieffer says that their extensive experience and education qualify most of them to remain self reliant well past current retirement ages If they are enabled to do so it would delay and reduce the time when they are forced to be financially and in some cases physically dependent He argues that unless policy leaders in both the public and private sectors act quickly and imaginatively to gain the financial and social dividends that can accrue from longer life our country by default will find itself preoccupied over the next thirty years with unnecessarily high costs of supporting its longer living and rapidly increasing older population Dr Kieffer explains why current retirement policies are no longer economically and politically manageable and he suggests a cost effective strategy whereby public and private funds could be used to enable millions of older people to remain active in jobs that serve unmet community needs He also outlines a strategy for helping young workers build retirement income assets during their entire work lives so that the unintended burdens that have fallen on the Social Security pension and public assistance programs can be eased and made more manageable in the future Lastly he describes the roles that government agencies businesses educational institutions foundations and older people themselves can play in carrying out the jobs and retirement income strategies

A European Strategy for Jobs and Growth Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: European Union Committee,2006-03-16 This report by the European Union Committee examines the progress of the European Union in initiating a strategy for jobs and growth across the Community as a whole The background to this report stems from the Spring European Council meeting in 2000 in Lisbon and the launch of an economic reform agenda The Committee observes that since the Lisbon Agenda little progress has been made and the performance of many of the larger European economies has been poor The Committee has noted that certain worrying signs of protectionist behaviour have developed especially regarding barriers of cross border mergers The EU has recognized this weak performance and the Agenda was relaunched in 2005 with a greater focus on the key economic priorities of more growth and jobs Also all Member States are now required to produce an annual National Action Plan highlighting the policies being pursued to improve economic growth and increase employment The Committee sets out a number of recommendations to further push forward the priorities of growth and jobs including that the Commission should seek to complete the progress towards an internal market that Member States should influence one another in the development of good practice through statistical comparison of their economic progress and agree on quantifiable targets that the format of the National Action Plans should include not only the successes but where countries are underperforming that the Agenda be given a higher public profile

The Trouble with Passion Erin Cech,2021-10-26 Probing the ominous side of career advice to follow your passion this data driven study explains how the passion principle fails us and perpetuates inequality by class gender and race and it suggests how we can reconfigure our relationships to paid work Follow your passion is a popular mantra for career decision making in the United States Passion seeking seems like a promising path for avoiding the potential drudgery of a life of paid work but this passion principle seductive as it is does not universally translate The Trouble with Passion reveals the significant downside of the passion principle the concept helps culturally legitimize and reproduce an exploited overworked

white collar labor force and broadly serves to reinforce class race and gender segregation and inequality Grounding her investigation in the paradoxical tensions between capitalism's demand for ideal workers and our cultural expectations for self expression sociologist Erin A Cech draws on interviews that follow students from college into the workforce surveys of US workers and experimental data to explain why the passion principle is such an attractive if deceptive career decision making mantra particularly for the college educated Passion seeking presumes middle class safety nets and springboards and penalizes first generation and working class young adults who seek passion without them The ripple effects of this mantra undermine the promise of college as a tool for social and economic mobility The passion principle also feeds into a culture of overwork encouraging white collar workers to tolerate precarious employment and gladly sacrifice time money and leisure for work they are passionate about And potential employers covet but won't compensate passion among job applicants This book asks What does it take to center passion in career decisions Who gets ahead and who gets left behind by passion seeking The Trouble with Passion calls for citizens educators college administrators and industry leaders to reconsider how we think about good jobs and by extension good lives

Youth Employment and the Future of Work Council of Europe, Jonathan Evans, Wei Shen, 2010-01-01 Young people are particularly vulnerable to fluctuations in economic trends Youth employment is therefore high on the policy agenda of those concerned with promoting social inclusion While youth targeted employment policies tend to combine both demand side and supply side approaches it is important to recognise that traditional notions of work have more recently been challenged and reconceptualised The old assumptions about gender roles job security and planned careers have thus been transformed by the profound economic and social changes of recent decades The essays collected here were developed from papers first delivered at a research seminar on youth employment organised by the partnership between the Council of Europe and the European Commission in the field of youth They represent a diverse and at times provocative collection of analytic snapshots of the position of young people on the European labour market What emerges is a shared commitment to finding flexible responses to economic globalisation and a concomitant concern for promoting the rights interests and welfare of young people in both training placement and in the workplace P 4 of cover
