History T. C Smout, 2011-08-16 This volume brings together the best of T C Smout s recent articles and contributions to books and journals on the topic of environmental history Woodland in the Neolithic of Northern Europe Gordon Noble, 2017-02-15 A detailed consideration of the ways in which human environment relations altered with the beginnings of agriculture in the Neolithic of northern Europe Pabay Christopher A. Whatley, 2019-07-18 The tiny diamond shaped island of Pabay lies in Skye s Inner Sound just two and a half miles from the bustling village of Broadford One of five Hebridean islands of that name it derives from the Norse papa ey meaning island of the priest Many visitors since the first holy men built their chapel there have felt that Pabay is a deeply spiritual place and one of wonder These include the great 19th century geologists Hugh Miller and Archibald Geikie for whom the island s rocks and fossil laden shales revealed much about the nature of Creation itself Len and Margaret Whatley moved to Pabay from the Midlands and lived there from 1950 until 1970 Leaving a landlocked life in Birmingham for the emptiness of an uninhabited island was a brave and challenging move for which nothing could have prepared them Christopher Whatley their nephew was a regular visitor to Pabay whilst they lived there In this book based on archival research oral interviews memory and personal experience he explores the history of this tiny island jewel and the people for whom it has been home to create a vivid picture of the trials tribulations and joys of island life A Handbook of Scotland's Wild Harvests : The Essential Guide to Edible Species, with Recipes and Plants for Natural Remedies, and Materials to Gather for Fuel, Gardening and Craft Fi Martynoga, Emma Chapman, 2012-08-23 Are you a forager If you dream of being more connected to the landscape and all the bounty it can provide this invaluable guide from the team who created A Handbook of Scotland s Trees will inform you about plants from fields woods and seashores as well

Shades of Green Ruth Tittensor,2016-10-31 This book takes a fresh look at the most disliked tree in Britain and Ireland explaining the reasons it was introduced and why it became ubiquitous in the archipelagos of northwest Europe Sitka spruce has contributed to the Pacific Coast landscapes of North America for over ten millennia For the Tlingit First Nation it is the most important tree in terms of spiritual relationships art and products in daily use such as canoes containers fish traps and sweet cakes Since the late nineteenth century it has also been the most important tree to the timber industry of west coast North America The historical background to the modern use of Sitka spruce is explored The lack of cultural reference may explain negative public response when treeless uplands in the UK and Ireland were afforested with introduced conifer species particularly Sitka spruce following two World Wars The multipurpose forestry of today recognizes that Sitka spruce is the most important tree to the timber industry and to a public which uses its many products but fails to recognize the link between growing trees and bought goods The apparently featureless and wildlife less Sitka spruce plantations in UK uplands are gradually developing recognizable ecological features Sitka spruce has the potential to form temperate rain forests this century as well as to produce much needed goods for society The major contribution of Sitka spruce to landscapes and livelihoods in western North America is by contrast widely accepted But conserving natural old growth forests sustaining the needs of First Nations and producing materials for the modern timber industry will be an intricate task Trees, Forested Landscapes and Grazing Animals Ian D. Rotherham, 2013-03-05 In this comprehensive book the critical components of the European landscape forest parkland and other grazed landscapes with trees are addressed The book considers the history of grazed treed landscapes of large grazing herbivores in Europe and the implications of the past in shaping our environment today and in the future Debates on the types of anciently grazed landscapes in Europe and what they tell us about past and present ecology have been especially topical and controversial recently This treatment brings the current discussions and the latest research to a much wider audience The book breaks new ground in broadening the scope of wood pasture and woodland research to address sites and ecologies that have previously been overlooked but which hold potential keys to understanding landscape dynamics Eminent contributors including Oliver Rackham and Frans Vera present a text which addresses the importance of history in understanding the past landscape and the relevance of historical ecology and landscape studies in providing a future vision Conquering the Highlands Jan Oosthoek, 2013-02-01 Deforestation of Scotland began millennia ago and by the early 20th century woodland cover was down to about 6 per cent of the total land area A century later woodland cover had tripled Most of the newly established forestry plantations were created on elevated land with wet peaty soils and high wind exposure not exactly the condition in which forests naturally thrive Jan Oosthoek tells in this book the story of how 20th century foresters devised ways to successfully reforest the poor Scottish uplands land that was regarded as unplatable to fulfil the mandate they had received from the Government and wider society to create a timber reserve He raises the question whether the adopted forestry practice was the only viable means to create forests in the Scottish Highlands by examining debates within the forestry community about the appearance of the forests and their longterm ecological prospects Finally the book argues that the long held ecological convictions among foresters and pressure from environmentalists came together in the late 20th century to create more environmentally sensitive forestry Routledge
