David Gregory,2006-04-13 Victorian Songhunters is a pioneering history of the rediscovery of vernacular song street songs that have entered oral tradition and have been passed from generation to generation in England during the late Georgian and Victorian eras In the nineteenth century there were four main types of vernacular song ballads folk lyrics occupational songs and national songs The discovery collecting editing and publishing of all four varieties are examined in the book and over seventy five selected examples are given for illustrative purposes Key concepts such as traditional balladry broadside balladry folksong and national song are analyzed as well as the complicated relationship between print and oral tradition and the different methodological approaches to ballad and song editing Organized chronologically Victorian Songhunters sketches the history of English song collecting from its beginnings in the mid seventeenth century focuses on the work of important individual collectors and editors such as William Chappell Francis J Child and John Broadwood examines the growth of regional collecting in various counties throughout England and demonstrates the considerable efforts of two important Victorian institutions the Percy Society and its successor the Ballad Society The appendixes contain discussions on interpreting songs an assessment of relevant secondary sources and a bibliography and alphabetical song list Author E David Gregory provides a solid foundation for the scholarly study of balladry and folksong and makes a significant contribution to our understanding of Victorian intellectual and cultural life English Studies Reinard Willem Zandvoort,1922

Credibility in Elizabethan and Early Stuart Military News David Randall,2015-10-06 Elizabethan and early Stuart

England saw the prevailing medium for transmitting military news shift from public ritual through private letters to public newspapers This study is based on an examination of hundreds of manuscript news letters printed pamphlets and corantos and news diaries which are in holdings in the US and the UK The Journal of English and Germanic Philology ,1924

News Networks in Early Modern Europe ,2016-06-27 News Networks in Early Modern Europe attempts to redraw the history of European news communication in the 16th and 17th centuries News is defined partly by movement and circulation yet histories of news have been written overwhelmingly within national contexts This volume of essays explores the notion that early modern European news in all its manifestations manuscript print and oral is fundamentally transnational These 37 essays investigate the language infrastructure and circulation of news across Europe They range from the 15th to the 18th centuries and from the Ottoman Empire to the Americas focussing on the mechanisms of transmission the organisation of networks the spread of forms and modes of news communication and the effects of their translation into new locales and languages The Bookman's Journal and Print Collector Wilfred Partington,1922
