Robert Adams Turning Back A Photographic:

Turning Back Robert Adams, 2005 Photographs by Robert Adams Along Some Rivers Robert Adams, 2006 Robert Adams one of America's foremost living photographers has spent decades considering and documenting the landscape of the American West and the ways it has been altered, disturbed or destroyed by the hand of man. A professor of English before turning to photography, Adams is also a skilled writer and acute thinker on aesthetic questions. Aperture's previous bestselling collections of his essays Beauty in Photography and Why People Photograph assembled his thoughts on a range of subjects including writing, teaching photography's place in the arts, and a host of fellow photographers. Along Some Rivers collects Adams's correspondence and conversations, some of which have never been published before, with writers and curators including William McEwan, Constance Sullivan, and Thomas Weski. In so doing, it provides another point of entry, offering a portrait of the artist in debate and elucidating his thoughts on a number of his now legendary projects, including Cottonwoods and What We Bought. Adams also expounds on why, in his view, Marcel Duchamp has not been a helpful guide for art, and he discusses which filmmakers and painters have influenced him, which cameras he prefers, and how he approaches printing his pictures. Along Some Rivers also includes a selection of 28 unpublished landscapes. The Environmental Uncanny Brian A. Irwin, 2024-06-27 The Environmental Uncanny argues that the increasing destitution of our world is the result of a certain forgetfulness: we have forgotten that the basis of our knowledge is not calculative reason, but our participation in the natural world. The modern built environment is exemplary of this forgetfulness and induces an uncanniness that can help us to understand the nature of our environmental crisis. This book offers a unique interdisciplinary perspective on the global environmental crisis, ranging from traditional phenomenology, including substantial discussion of both Merleau-Ponty and Heidegger, to philosophy of biology, to architectural and urban design theory, to landscape photography. It makes illuminating connections to paint a multifaceted picture. Tracing the root causes of dwindling biodiversity, deforestation, and suburban sprawl, we can find how, might we mark the path back toward a mode of rich inhabitation in a contemporary age. In charting out how it is that we are losing our world, Irwin offers a thought as to how we might regain it.

Stories from the Camera Michele M. Penhall, 2016-03-15 The remarkable photography collection of the University of New Mexico Art Museum owes its unique character and quality to the directors, curators, scholars, and artists who have taught, worked, and studied at the museum and in the university's Department of Art and Art History. In this indispensable book, these distinguished scholars and artists reflect on the pictures from the collection that hold significance to them. Through their own professional and artistic practice, they represent different generations of aesthetic voices and intellectual directions. As one of the earliest collegiate institutions to begin collecting photography, the University of New Mexico Art Museum holds a stunning array of images that span photography's 175-year history. In addition to iconic works by famous photographers, this book also features less familiar but equally masterful pictures. Together, these essays represent a

Undermining Lucy R. Lippard, 2006-09-13 A marvelous slim book that weaves ideas facts images and histories into a whole about the ecology of the manmade world Rebecca Solnit In Undermining the award winning author art historian and social critic Lucy R Lippard delivers another trademark work that combines text and full color images to explore the intersection of art the environment geography and politics Kirkus Reviews Working from her own experience of life in a New Mexico village and inspired by the gravel pits in the surrounding landscape Lippard addresses a number of fascinating themes including fracking mining land art adobe buildings ruins Indian land rights the Old West tourism photography and water In her meditations she illuminates the relationship between culture industry and the land From threatened Native American sacred sites to the history of uranium mining she offers a skeptical examination of the subterranean economy Featuring more than two hundred gorgeous color images Undermining offers a provocative new perspective on the relationship between art and place in a rapidly shifting society Lippard's strength lies in the depth of her commitment her dual loyalty to tradition and modernity and her effort to restore the broken connection between the two Suzi Gablik The New York Times Book Review

Wyoming Grasslands Frank H. Goodyear, Charles R. Preston, 2015-07 Naturalist John James Audubon found the Great Plains and their wildlife so riveting when he visited the region in 1834 that he broke off a letter to his wife because he was too excited to write In the almost two hundred years since then the Wyoming landscape deemed the Italy of America by landscape painter Albert Bierstadt has retained its glory if not its place in the imagination of the American public This book reminds us of the remarkable bounty contained in the wild beauty and rich history of the Wyoming grasslands even as these riches are under threat from both human and natural forces This landscape is now captured in all its spectacular diversity in the photography of Michael P Berman and William S Sutton two of the modern American West's most accomplished and well known landscape photographers Essays by Frank H Goodyear Jr and Charles R Preston provide a contextual framework for the images Goodyear introduces us to the imagery of the American West and explains the place of Berman's and Sutton's work within that tradition and Preston focuses on the natural history of the grasslands illuminating the area's ecological diversity and changes through the seasons and over the years In 2012 Berman and Sutton launched their massive Wyoming Grasslands Photographic Project a partnership between The Nature Conservancy Wyoming Chapter and the Buffalo Bill Center of the West Working in the tradition of late nineteenth century explorers and photographers of the American West Berman and Sutton shot more than 50 000 digital photographs of Wyoming prairie from the Red Desert of southwestern Wyoming to the Thunder Basin National Grassland of the state's northeastern corner The best of their extraordinarily sensitive revealing and powerful images appear in these pages documenting the sweep and the seasons of the Wyoming landscape In eloquent words and pictures including a foreword by environmental historian Dan Flores Wyoming Grasslands offers dramatic proof of how the land that inspired the likes of Audubon and Bierstadt while having altered over time still holds and demands our attention

Re-Collecting Black Hawk Nicholas Brown, Sarah E. Kanouse, 2015-06-04 The name Black Hawk permeates the built environment in the upper Midwestern United States It has been appropriated for everything from fitness clubs to used car dealerships Makataimeshekiakiak the Sauk Indian war leader whose name loosely translates to Black Hawk surrendered in 1832 after hundreds of his fellow tribal members were slaughtered at the Bad Axe Massacre Re Collecting Black Hawk examines the phenomena of this appropriation in the physical landscape and the deeply rooted sentiments it evokes among Native Americans and descendants of European settlers Nearly 170 original photographs are presented and juxtaposed with texts that reveal and complicate the significance of the imagery Contributors include tribal officials scholars activists and others such as George Thurman the principal chief of the Sac and Fox Nation and a direct descendant of Black Hawk These image text encounters offer visions of both the past and present and the shaping of memory through landscapes that reach beyond their material presence into spaces of cultural and political power As we witness the evocation of Black Hawk serves as a painful reminder a forced deference and a veiled attempt to wipe away the guilt of past atrocities Re Collecting Black Hawk also points toward the future By simultaneously unsettling and reconstructing the Midwestern landscape Re Collecting Black Hawk envisions new modes of pe

New York's New Edge David Halle, Elisabeth Tiso, 2014-12-09 The story of New York's west side no longer stars the Sharks and the Jets Instead it's a story of urban transformation cultural shifts and an expanding contemporary art scene The Chelsea Gallery District has become New York's most dominant neighborhood for contemporary art and the streets of the west side are filled with gallery owners art collectors and tourists Developments like the High Line historical preservation projects like the Gansevoort Market the Chelsea galleries and plans for megaprojects like the Hudson Yards Development have redefined what is now being called the Far West Side of Manhattan David Halle and Elisabeth Tiso offer a deep analysis of the transforming district in New York's New Edge and the result is a new understanding of how we perceive and interpret culture and the city in New York's gallery district. From individual interviews with gallery owners to the behind-the-scenes politics of preservation initiatives and megaprojects, the book provides an in-depth account of the developments, obstacles, successes, and failures of the area and the factors that have contributed to them. How Cities Won the West Carl Abbott, 2011-03-03. Cities rather than individual pioneers have been the driving force in the settlement and economic development of the western half of North America. Throughout the seventeenth, eighteenth, and nineteenth centuries, western urban centers served as starting points for conquest and settlement. As these frontier cities matured into metropolitan centers, they grew from imitators of eastern culture and outposts of eastern capital into independent sources of economic, cultural, and intellectual change. From the Gulf of Alaska to the Mississippi River and from the binational metropolis of San Diego/Tijuana to the Prairie Province capitals of Canada, Carl Abbott explores the complex urban history of western Canada and the United States. The evolution of western cities from stations for exploration and military occupation to contemporary entry points for migration and components of a global economy reminds us that it is cities that won the West. And today, as cultural change increasingly moves from west to east, Abbott argues that the urban West represents a new center from which emerging patterns of behavior and changing customs will help to shape North America in the twenty-first century. The New York Times Traveler's Guide to International Art Museum Exhibitions 2005 Alan Riding, Susan Mermelstein, Roberta Smith, 2004-11. Offers national and international coverage of major art exhibitions at more than 400 museums in the US and abroad, using the resources of The New York Times. It also features essential information on permanent collections, hours, museum websites, and amenities. The Routledge Companion to Landscape Studies Peter Howard, Ian Thompson, Emma Waterton, Mick Atha, 2018-09-03. This new edition of The Routledge Companion to Landscape Studies contains an updated and expanded selection of original chapters which explore research directions in an array of disciplines sharing a concern for landscape, a term which has many uses and meanings. It features 33 revised and/or updated chapters and 14 entirely new chapters on topics such as the Anthropocene, Indigenous landscapes, challenging landscape Eurocentrism, photography, and green infrastructure planning. The volume is divided into four parts: Experiencing landscape, Landscape heritage and culture, Landscape society and justice, and Design and planning for landscape. Collectively, the book provides a critical review of the various fields related to the study of landscapes, including the future development of conceptual and theoretical approaches as well as current empirical knowledge and understanding. It encourages dialogue across disciplinary barriers and between academics and practitioners and reflects upon the implications of research findings for local, national, and international policy in relation to landscape. The Companion provides a comprehensive and up-to-date guide to current thinking about landscapes and serves as an invaluable point of reference for scholars, researchers, and graduate students alike.
