Sg Sociology:

The Making of Singapore Sociology Tong Chee-Kiong, Lian Kwen-Fee, 2021-11-08 This book presents a collection of essays of how the city state of Singapore's societal dynamics have evolved from the time of its birth as a nation in 1965 to the present. Key areas of Singapore society are explored contributing to the understanding of the social organisation of the city. This study reveals a shift from the modernisation studies in the 1970s to a more political economic turn as a consequence of the influence of dependency and world systems theories. Topics covered include urban studies, family, education, medical care, class and social stratification, work, language, ethnic groups, religion, and crime and deviance. The Oxford Handbook of Digital Technology and Society Simeon Yates, Ronald E. Rice, 2020 The Oxford Handbook of Digital Technology and Society will equip readers with the necessary starting points and provocations in the fields of social science and technology so that students, scholars, and policy makers can effectively assess future research practice and policy. Singapore Studies Beng Huat Chua, Basant Kapur, 1986 This edition brings up to date a decade of research work, developments of the Faculty of Arts and Social Science, National University of Singapore since the first volume was published in 1985. The state of the respective disciplines covered are reviewed in terms of notable theoretical and conceptual developments, major benchmarks during the past decade, and research lacunae that need to be addressed as well as their substantive developments and contributions in the Singapore context and possible future directions, resulting in a collection of essays that places the Faculty's studies in an international comparative framework. Different Under God Terence Chong, Yew-Foong Hui, 2013 Different under God is the first substantial comprehensive and scientific analysis of Christianity in Singapore, covering religious, social, and political attitudes. This survey by Terence Chong and Hui Yew Foong will be enthusiastically welcomed by today's sociologists and historians in the future. An important and timely contribution to the sociology of religion and to the study of Singapore. Bryan S Turner, Presidential Professor of Sociology, the Graduate Centre, the City University of New York, USA. This is a landmark study of Christianity in Singapore that is sorely needed today, not only to confirm many scholarly guesses but also to dispel public stereotypes of Christians as homogeneously sheep-like or militant. Scholars and Singaporeans beware. Terence and Yew Foong have started a fire that will enliven public discourse on religion and society for years to come. Daniel P. S. Goh, Assistant Professor of Sociology, National University of Singapore. Analysing individual and discussion group responses from churchgoers in both mainline denominations and independent churches, this study grapples with a number of highly relevant, even sensitive issues in contemporary Christianity: issues of moral values and attitudes including those on sexuality and sexual orientation, money and giving, organizational belonging, governance, and others. While some of the findings and conclusions may reinforce broad perceptions of Christianity and churches in Singapore, others were quite eye-opening. Also useful for researchers, the study contains important data on respondents' socio-economic backgrounds. All in all, it is a most welcome scholarly contribution, and I expect that it will be a well-cited resource for future scholarship. Robbie B. H. Goh.

Professor of English Literature National University of Singapore      The Barbarian Temperament Stejpan

Mestrovic, 2013-07-23 This scintillating book by one of the most interesting young sociologists currently working in the USA is a provocative and timely contribution to the debate on civilization modernity and postmodernity The author argues that modernity never jettisoned barbarism Instead barbarism was repackaged in modern and postmodern traditions and cultures

Governing Global-City Singapore Kenneth Paul Tan, 2016-12-19 This book provides a detailed analysis of how governance in Singapore has evolved since independence to become what it is today and what its prospects might be in a post Lee Kuan Yew future Firstly it discusses the question of political leadership electoral dominance and legislative monopoly in Singapore s one party dominant system and the system s durability Secondly it tracks developments in Singapore s public administration critically analysing the formation and transformation of meritocracy and pragmatism two key components of the state ideology Thirdly it discusses developments within civil society focusing in particular on issues related to patriarchy and feminism hetero normativity and gay activism immigration and migrant worker exploitation and the contest over history and national narratives in academia the media and the arts Fourthly it discusses the PAP government s efforts to connect with the public including its national public engagement exercises that can be interpreted as a subtler approach to social and political control In increasingly complex conditions the state struggles to maintain its hegemony while securing a pre eminent position in the global economic order Tan demonstrates how trends in these four areas converge in ways that signal plausible futures for a post LKY Singapore      Migration and Marriage in Asian Contexts Zheng Mu, Wei-Jun Jean

Yeung, 2021-11-29 This book analyses how Asian migrants adapt and assimilate into their host societies and how this assimilation differs across their sociodemographic backgrounds ethnic profiles and political contexts The diversities in Asian migrants assimilation trajectories challenge the assumption that given time migrants will eventually integrate holistically into their host societies This book captures the diverse patterns and trajectories of assimilation by going beyond marriage migration to look at how family formation processes are shaped by migration driven by reasons other than marriage Using quantitative qualitative and mixed method analyses not only does this book uncover the nuances of the link between marriage and migration but it also widens methodological repertoires in research on marriage and migration It also captures various social outcomes that may have been influenced by migration including migrants economic well being cultural assimilation subjective well being and gender inequality vis vis marriages This book further embeds the studies in the Asian contexts by drawing on individual countries unique policies relevant to cross cultural marriages the persistent impacts of extended families the patriarchal traditions and systems of religion and caste The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies      Managing Diversity In Singapore: Policies

And Prospects Mathews Mathew, Wai Fong Chiang, 2016-05-11 Singapore society is increasingly becoming diverse During the first few decades of nation building policies were designed to homogenise aspects of Singaporean society while enshrining principles to allow restricted amounts of diversity Fast forward to the present and fifty years after independence the number of areas where diversity is profoundly apparent remains copious and its manifestations more varied This book provides an updated account on the tensions posed by diversity in Singapore and how this is being managed primarily by the state through policies and programmes but also by communities who attempt to negotiate these tensions Such an enquiry is crucial especially at this juncture when the nation is finding ways to embrace the different forms of diversity brought about through external impetuses as well as manage internal reactions from the various communities The book chapters highlight important considerations if Singapore's diversity management strategies will hold promise for the future

Social Capital in Singapore Vincent Chua, Gillian Koh, Ern Ser Tan, Drew Shih, 2020-12-27 How can social cohesion be achieved in a meritocratic and multicultural global city state Meritocracy poses a paradox On one hand it integrates individuals through frameworks of equal treatment equal justice and opportunity regardless of race language or religion On the other hand individuals are then segregating through academic sorting they are rewarded based on credentials and performance which also results in elite identification and bonding After a generation without mitigation action social stratification can result Distinctive circles differentiating social elites from non elites the professional classes from non professional classes emerge The remedy the authors propose is network diversity which is the organic forming of ties across class and other social boundaries built on deliberate policies programmes and platforms designed to facilitate that This social mixing forged in social infrastructure such as schools workplaces and voluntary associations pays off by producing the collective goods of national identity and trust This hypothesis has been tested in the case of Singapore society and the empirical results from the research on the power of network diversity and bridging social capital are found in this volume An insightful read for scholars and practitioners in public policy and social network analysis looking to understand the challenges faced by and the experiences that have emerged from the case of Singapore with its multicultural and cosmopolitan setting
