Balatonboglár 1970-1973 on the foundation, development, art projects and events as well as the preferences and issues pertaining to art research not independent of the historical and social environment they were conceived in that had formed throughout the course of many years and decades. The occasion of the publication of ARTPOOL: The Experimental Art Archive of East Central Europe is a milestone in the history of art for its documentation of a remarkable period in the chronicles of conceptual performance, installation and video art as well as ephemeral mediums such as mail art and artists' stamp sheets, postcards, rubber stamp imprints, artists' writings and samizdat publications. The work represented in the Artpool archive is astonishing in its scope and quantity, quality of imagination, intellectual force and the courage of the artists who created it. This volume presents an opportunity to reflect on the events that brought Artpool into being to acknowledge that while originating in the context of East Central Europe, Artpool's community has always been international and to evaluate its broad contributions to world culture and society. At a Distance Annmarie Chandler, 2005. The theory and practice of networked art and activism, including mail art, sound art, telematic art, fax art, Fluxus and assemblages. Networked collaborations of artists did not begin on the Internet. In this multidisciplinary look at the practice of art that takes place across a distance, geographical, temporal or emotional, theorists and practitioners examine the ways that art, activism and media fundamentally reconfigured each other in experimental networked projects of the 1970s and 1980s. By providing a context for this work, showing that it was shaped by varying mixes of social relations, cultural strategies and political and aesthetic concerns, At a Distance effectively refutes the widely accepted idea that networked art is technologically determined. Doing so, it provides the historical grounding needed for a more complete understanding of today's practices of Internet art and activism and suggests the possibilities inherent in networked practice. At a Distance traces the history and theory of such experimental art projects as Mail Art, sound and radio art, telematic art, assemblages and Fluxus. Although the projects differed, a conceptual questioning of the art object combined with a political undermining of dominant art institutional practices animated most distance art. After a section that sets this work in historical and critical perspective, the book presents artists and others involved in this art, re-viewing their work, including experiments in mini FM, telerebotics, networked psychoanalysis and interactive book construction. Finally, the book recasts the history of networks from the perspectives of politics, aesthetics, economics and cross-cultural analysis.

Archiving Advanced Art John Held Jr., 2019-12-24. Collaging Information: The Artist, the Librarian, the Artist Librarian. Several years after becoming a professional librarian in 1972, I became involved in Mail Art. This international network of cooperating artists has expanded my vision of both the world and the profession. Over the years, I have taken it upon myself to document various aspects of Mail Art which would have remained unexamined without the involvement of someone both actively participating in the medium and in possession of professional research skills. In so doing, I have been able to integrate two important facets of my life.
