Medically Assisted Conception An Agenda For Research:

Medically Assisted Conception Institute of Medicine and National Research Council, Institute of Medicine, Committee on the Basic Science Foundations of Medically Assisted Conception, 1989-02-01 This book results from a study by a committee of the Institute of Medicine and the National Research Council's Board on Agriculture. The committee examined the scientific foundations of medically assisted conception and developed an agenda for basic research in reproductive and developmental biology that would contribute to advances in the clinical and agricultural practice of in vitro fertilization and embryo transfer. The volume also discusses some barriers to progress in research and ways of lowering them and explains the scientific issues important to ethical decision making. Compendium of HHS Evaluations and Relevant Other Studies HHS Policy Information Center (U.S.), 1990 Compendium of HHS Evaluations and Relevant Other Studies, 1990 Fetal

Research and Applications Institute of Medicine, Conference Committee on Fetal Research and Applications, 1994-02-01 Research involving human fetuses and fetal tissue has been a subject of national debate and rancor for more than two decades. Despite the many demonstrated medical benefits of such research and the issuance of guidelines by various governmental and private ethics advisory bodies, federal support of this research has been severely curtailed. In 1993 the Institute of Medicine (IOM) sponsored a conference on fetal research and applications. This book examines the current state of fetal research and fetal tissue research. It contains an overview of research in the field and a short history on the regulatory and legislative actions governing the field. The bulk of the volume centers on ethical and legal issues of fetal research, preembryo research, fetal research, and fetal tissue transplantation. The volume also contains a full reprinting of the summary from the 1989 IOM book Medically Assisted Conception: An Agenda for Research including the recommendations and research agenda suggested in that volume. Readers can therefore view that information in context with the suggestions and topics discussed at the conference. The background and research summarized in Fetal Research and Applications should provide insights for future progress and contribute to a fuller understanding of the social and ethical issues involved in this field. National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1990 IVF and Assisted

Reproduction Sarah Ferber, Nicola J. Marks, Vera Mackie, 2020-12-17 This is the first transnational history of IVF and assisted reproduction. It is a key text for scholars and students in social science, history, science, and technology studies, STS, cultural studies, and gender and sexuality studies, and a resource for journalists, policymakers, and anyone interested in assisted reproduction. IVF was seen as revolutionary in 1978 when the first two IVF babies were born in the UK and India. Assisted reproduction has now contributed to the birth of around ten million people. The book traces the work of IVF teams as they developed new techniques and laid the foundations of a multi-billion dollar industry. It analyses the changing definitions and experience of infertility, the markets for eggs and children through surrogacy, cross-border reproductive treatment, and the impact of regulation. Using interviews with leading IVF figures, archives, media reports, and the latest science, it is a vital

addition to the field of reproduction studies This pathbreaking account of the global forces behind the rapid rise of the fertility industry is the first to offer such a truly comprehensive overview of this hugely important topic Sarah Franklin Chair of Sociology University of Cambridge In this compelling overview of one of the most significant technological and social interventions ever developed the cultural and scientific imaginaries of assisted reproduction meet the obdurate histories of laboratory experiments biological materials and personal quests It is an indispensable read for anyone interested in IVF and assisted reproduction Andrea Whittaker Professor of Anthropology Monash University Medically Assisted Conception, 1989

Strengthening Research in Academic OB/GYN Departments Institute of Medicine, Committee on Research Capabilities of Academic Departments of Obstetrics and Gynecology, 1992-02-01 Research conducted in academic departments of obstetrics and gynecology could result in substantial improvements in the health of women and the outcomes of pregnancy Strengthening Research in Academic OB GYN Departments determines whether such departments are capable of fulfilling this promise The committee finds that these departments have a poor track record in their ability to compete for research funds and in the extent to which their faculty contribute to research Adding to the problem are factors that deter OB GYNs from a research career and a dearth of dynamic research leaders in the profession The volume explores reasons for this situation and makes recommendations to counteract them Also included is an agenda of needed research Human Embryo Laboratories United States.
