Mission-focused Congregations Lois Barrett, 2002

Re-Imagining the Church Robert J. Suderman, 2016-09-30

The church What has it become What was it meant to be Does it pave the way or get in the way Are we suspicious of the institutionalization of church bureaucracy Or thrilled with the relevant impact of its presence Robert J Suderman writes about the church as a practitioner His inspiration emerges out of the crossroads of biblical vision and human sincerity always tempered with frailty Years of ministry never a stranger to complexity only serve to sharpen the vision of possibility His imagination of what can be is never divorced from the realities of what is He does not bow to the common assumption that you can't get there from here Here is the only possible point of origin for us In his succinct easy to understand writing style Suderman provides insightful and thought provoking perspectives to what it means to be the church To be a people called out to participate together in God's activity in the world and to create programs and structures needed for effective ministry are two sides of the same coin This book is for dreamers and bureaucrats alike indeed it assumes that the two are indispensable pieces of God's coming presence Introduction by Tom Yoder Neufeld For Everything a Season Paul Toews, Kevin Enns-Rempel, 2002

Stutzman, 2011-03-29 The more things change the more they stay the same From Nonresistance to Justice explores how this is true when it comes to teaching about peace for the former Mennonite Church now part of Mennonite Church USA Has the church changed in regard to its beliefs and practices about peace over the past 100 years Yes Has it remained the same Yes Reading this book will show that both are true Through the book Ervin Stutzman shows how the church moved from an emphasis on nonresistance and nonconformity to engage in advocacy for peace and justice At the same time he presses for a greater emphasis on the way that God's activity must guide our work in the world arguing for a stronger link between God's grace justice and peace Volume 46 in the Studies in Anabaptist and Mennonite History Series

Sider, 2005-10-06 Recent years have seen unprecedented attention to faith based institutions as agents of social change spurred in part by cuts in public funding for social services and accompanied by controversy about the separation of church and state The debate over faith based initiatives has highlighted a small but growing segment of churches committed to both saving souls and serving society What distinguishes faith based from secular activism How do religious organizations express their religious identity in the context of social services How do faith based service providers interpret the connection between spiritual methodologies and socioeconomic outcomes How does faith motivate and give meaning to social ministry Drawing on case studies of fifteen Philadelphia area Protestant churches with active outreach Saving Souls Serving Society seeks to answer these and other pressing questions surrounding the religious dynamics of social ministry While church based programs often look similar to secular ones in terms of goods or services rendered they may show significant differences in terms of motivations desired outcomes and interpretations of meaning Church based programs also differ from one another in terms of how they relate evangelism to their social outreach agenda Heidi Rolland Unruh and Ronald J Sider explore how churches navigate the tension between their spiritual mission and the constraints on evangelism in the context of social services The authors examine the potential contribution of religious dynamics to social outcomes as well as the relationship between mission orientations and social capital Unruh and Sider introduce a new vocabulary for describing the religious components and spiritual meanings embedded in social action and provide a typology of faith based organizations and programs Their analysis yields a framework for Protestant mission orientations that makes room for the diverse ways that churches interrelate spiritual witness and social compassion Based on their observations the authors offer a constructive approach to church state partnerships and provide a far more objective understanding of faith based social services than previously available
