Double Vision Tzachi Zamir, 2012-06-24 Hamlet tells Horatio that there are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamt of in his philosophy In Double Vision philosopher and literary critic Tzachi Zamir argues that there are more things in Hamlet than are dreamt of or at least conceded by most philosophers Making an original and persuasive case for the philosophical value of literature Zamir suggests that certain important philosophical insights can be gained only through literature But such insights cannot be reached if literature is deployed merely as an aesthetic sugaring of a conceptual pill Philosophical knowledge is not opposed to but is consonant with the literariness of literature By focusing on the experience of reading literature as literature and not philosophy Zamir sets a theoretical framework for a philosophically oriented literary criticism that will appeal both to philosophers and literary critics Double Vision is concerned with the philosophical understanding induced by the aesthetic experience of literature Literary works can function as credible philosophical arguments not ones in which claims are conclusively demonstrated but in which claims are made plausible Such claims Zamir argues are embedded within an experiential structure that is itself a crucial dimension of knowing Developing an account of literature's relation to knowledge morality and rhetoric and advancing philosophical literary readings of Richard III Macbeth Romeo and Juliet Othello Antony and Cleopatra Hamlet and King Lear Zamir shows how his approach can open up familiar texts in surprising and rewarding ways Choral Repertoire Dennis Shrock, 2022

Stern, Liselotte Bendix Stern, 2013-05-13 The culmination of over three decades of investigation into traumatic processes Repetition and Trauma is the late Max Stern's pioneering reconceptualization of trauma in the light of recent insights into the physiology and psychology of stress and the teleonomic character of human evolution in developing defenses against shock As such it is a highly original attempt to reformulate certain basic tenets of psychoanalysis with the findings of modern biology in general and neurobiology in particular At the core of Stern's effort is the integration of laboratory research into sleep and dreaming so as to clarify the meaning of pavor nocturnus In concluding that these night terrors represent a defense against stress caused by threatening nightmares he exploits though he interpretively departs from the laboratory research on dreams conducted by Charles Fisher and others in the 1960s From his understanding of pavor nocturnus as a compulsion to repeat in the service of overcoming a developmental failure to attribute meaning to states of tension Stern enlarges his inquiry to the phenomena of repetitive dreams in general In a brilliant reconstruction of Freud's Beyond the Pleasure Principle he suggests that Freud was correct in attributing the repetitive phenomena of traumatic dreams to forces operating beyond the pleasure principle but holds that these phenomena can be best illumined in terms of Freud's conception of mastery and Stern's own notion of reparative mastery
