Hermans, 2012-09-10 In an increasingly interconnected world a dialogical self is not only possible but even necessary People are closer together than ever yet they are confronted with apparent and sometimes even insurmountable differences While there is a need of increased dialogue between individuals groups and cultures it is equally important to develop of dialogical potentials within the self of the individual person Elaborating on these concerns the authors present and discuss a Dialogical Self Theory based on the assumption that the self functions as a society of mind The self is not simply participating in a surrounding society but functions itself as a mini society which is at the same time part of the society at large The authors Present the theory in detail Explore the developmental origins of the dialogical self Elaborate on the identity development of adolescents growing up in multicultural societies Discuss a striking example of a social movement in India where individual and collective voices merge in a nationwide protest This is the 137th volume in this series Its mission is to provide scientific and scholarly presentations on cutting edge issues and concepts in child and adolescent development Each volume focuses on a specific new direction or research topic and is edited by experts on that topic      Essays of a Penitentiary Philosopher Phillip

Torsrud, 2008-01-30 If you want to know why our nation's leaders have failed to solve America's crime problem these essays expose a number of areas where either not enough thought is being given or the thinking is just wrong While crime dominates America's media and political scene there is very little intelligent insight on the topic coming from those who would know most about it criminals These essays change that The essays begin by addressing crime as part of a larger social fabric that cannot be fixed by the simple passing of a few more laws After focusing on the big picture the essays become more specific examining different ways to make a more efficient and effective legal system In part two these essays expand to address a number of other social issues like the war in Iraq labor issues health care and the environment The reader is forced to continuously re examine their beliefs Torsrud strips down problems to their core creating arguments that are insightful hard to challenge and at times even humorous      Long-Term Caring ANZ Karen Scott,Margaret Webb,Clare
