Peoples Representatives Theory And Practice Of Parliamentary Democracy In Tanzania:

People's Representatives Rwekaza Sympho Mukandala, Samuel S. Mushi, Casmir M. Rubagumya, 2004 Full parliamentary democracy did not come quickly or easily to Tanzania In 1962 the first constitution of Tanzania as an independent republic shifted power from parliament to the executive specifically to the presidency In 1965 the interim constitution further eroded the powers of parliament in favour of a one party state controlled by the Tanganyika African National Union TANU Parliament became little more than a token rubber stamping organisation This multi contributory study traces the development of multi party democracy in Tanzania from the appointment of the first two chiefs to Tanganyika s colonial Legislative Council in 1945 to the present day It highlights the struggle for supremacy between parliament and the executive during the period from 1968 to 1992 when parliament began to assert itself as a vibrant multi party institution

Democratic Theory and Practice in Africa W. O. Oyugi, 1995 Challenges for the Democratisation Process in Tanzania Jonas Ewald, 2013 Tanzania has been independent in 2011 for 50 years While most neighbouring states have gone through violent conflicts Tanzania has managed to implement extensive reforms without armed political conflicts Hence Tanzania is an interesting case for Peace and Development research This dissertation analyses the political development in Tanzania since the introduction of the multiparty system in 1992 with a focus on the challenges for the democratisation process in connection with the 2000 and 2005 elections The question of to what extent Tanzania had moved towards a consolidation of democracy is analysed by looking at nine different institutions of importance for democratisation grouped in four spheres the state the political civil and economic society Focus is on the development of the political society and the role of the opposition in particular The analysis is based on secondary and primary material collected between September 2000 to April 2010 The main conclusion is that even if the institutions of liberal democracy have gradually developed in practice single party rule has continued manifested in the 2005 election when the CCM won 92% of seats Despite impressive economic growth poverty remains deep and has not been substantially reduced On a theoretical level this brings the old debate between liberal and substantive democracy back to the fore Neither the economic nor the political reforms have brought about a transformation of the political and economic system resulting in the poor majority gaining substantially more political influence and improved economic conditions Hence it is argued that the interface between the economic political and administrative reforms has not been sufficiently considered in the liberal democratic tradition Liberal democracy is necessary for a democratic development but not sufficient for democracy to be consolidated For that a substantive democratic development is necessary Race, Nation, and Citizenship in Postcolonial Africa Ronald Aminzade, 2013-10-31 Nationalism has generated violence bloodshed and genocide as well as patriotic sentiments that encourage people to help fellow citizens and place public responsibilities above personal interests This study explores the contradictory character of African nationalism as it unfolded over decades of Tanzanian history in conflicts over public policies concerning the rights of citizens foreigners and the nation's Asian racial minority. These policy debates reflected a history of racial oppression and foreign domination and were shaped by a quest for economic development, racial justice and national self-reliance. Institutions and Democracy in Africa Nic Cheeseman, 2018-02-22. Historically, African political institutions such as constitutions, legislatures and judiciaries have been seen as weak and vulnerable to manipulation, leading some to claim that the continent is institutionless. However, recent developments including the consolidation of presidential term limits in a number of countries demonstrate that this depiction is no longer tenable. By drawing attention to how institutions can shape the practice of politics, this book demonstrates that electoral commissions, economic regulations and systems of land tenure are vital to our understanding of contemporary Africa. A series of cutting-edge contributions from leading scholars explain how the rules of the game shape political developments across the continent, from Kenya to Nigeria and from Benin to South Africa. In chapters that cover bureaucracies, constitutions, elections, political parties, the police and more, the authors argue that a new research agenda is required if we are to better understand the process of democratisation.

Pathways to Judicial Power in Transitional States Rachel Ellett, 2013-08-21. This book examines the complex relationship that exists between the construction of judicial power and the institutional characteristics of the courts and their regime setting. It examines the intriguing connection between the construction of judicial power on the one hand and the institutional characteristics of the courts and regime setting on the other. The book asks whether courts are rendered powerful by virtue of their institutional characteristics or by a supportive, perhaps acquiescent, regime setting. By analyzing the historical pathways of courts in Uganda, Tanzania and Malawi, this book argues that the emergence of judicial power since the colonial period, though fraught with many challenges, presents a unique opportunity for consolidating democracy. The book examines in detail the significant political decisions of the upper-level courts in Uganda, Tanzania and Malawi from the colonial period to the present day, analyzing them in relation to changes in the political environment over time. Analysis of these decisions is also supplemented by in-depth interviews with judges, lawyers and other important stakeholders in the judicial processes. This book demonstrates that even in the most challenging regime environments, effective institutions and determined individuals can push back against interference and issue politically powerful, independent decisions, but the way in which judiciaries respond to this regime pressure varies enormously across countries and regions.

Challenges for the Democratisation Process in Tanzania Jonas Ewald, 2013-07-24. Tanzania has been independent for 50 years. While most neighbouring states have gone through violent conflicts, Tanzania has managed to implement extensive reforms without armed political conflicts. Hence, Tanzania is an interesting case for Peace and Development research. This dissertation analyses the political development in Tanzania since the introduction of the multiparty system in 1992, with a focus on the challenges for the democratisation process in connection with the 2000 and 2005 elections. The question of to what extent Tanzania had moved towards a consolidation of democracy is analysed by looking at nine different institutions of importance for democratisation.

grouped in four spheres the state the political civil and economic society Focus is on the development of the political society and the role of the opposition in particular The analysis is based on secondary and primary material collected between September 2000 to April 2010 The main conclusion is that even if the institutions of liberal democracy have gradually developed in practice single party rule has continued manifested in the 2005 election when the CCM won 92% of seats Despite impressive economic growth poverty remains deep and has not been substantially reduced On a theoretical level this brings the old debate between liberal and substantive democracy back to the fore Neither the economic nor the political reforms have brought about a transformation of the political and economic system resulting in the poor majority gaining substantially more political influence and improved economic conditions Hence it is argued that the interface between the economic political and administrative reforms has not been sufficiently considered in the liberal democratic tradition Liberal democracy is necessary for a democratic development but not sufficient for democracy to be consolidated For that a substantive democratic development is necessary

Wealth, Power, and Authoritarian Institutions Michaela Collord, 2024-07-16 Through an analysis of the recent political history of Tanzania and Uganda Wealth Power and Authoritarian Institutions offers a novel explanation of why authoritarian parties and legislatures vary in strength and why this variation matters Michaela Collord elaborates a view of authoritarian political institutions as both reflecting and magnifying elite power dynamics While there are many sources of elite power the book centres on material power It outlines how diverse trajectories of state led capitalist development engender differing patterns of wealth accumulation and elite contestation across regimes These differences in turn influence institutional landscapes Where accumulation is more closely controlled by state and party leaders as was true in Tanzania until economic liberalization in the 1980s rival factions remain subdued Ruling parties can then consolidate relatively strong institutional structures and parliament remains marginal Conversely where a class of private wealth accumulators expands as occurred in Tanzania after the 1980s and in Uganda after the National Resistance Movement took power in 1986 rival factions can more easily form simultaneously eroding party institutions and encouraging greater legislative strength Collord uses this analysis to reassess the significance of a stronger legislature She considers its influence on distributive politics both regressive and progressive She also considers its relation to democratization particularly in a context of broader liberalizing reforms The book ultimately encourages a closer examination of how would be democratic institutions interact with an underlying power distribution shaping in whose interests they operate Oxford Studies in African Politics and International Relations is a series for scholars and students working on African politics and International Relations and related disciplines Volumes concentrate on contemporary developments in African political science political economy and International Relations such as electoral politics democratization decentralization gender and political representation the political impact of natural resources the dynamics and consequences of conflict comparative political thought and the nature of the continent s engagement with the East and West Comparative and mixed methods work is particularly encouraged Case studies are welcomed but should demonstrate the broader theoretical and empirical implications of the study and its wider relevance to contemporary debates The focus of the series is on sub Saharan Africa although proposals that explain how the region engages with North Africa and other parts of the world are of interest General Editors Nic Cheeseman Peace Medie and Ricardo Soares de Oliveira

The Structural Prevention of Mass Atrocities Stephen McLoughlin, 2014-07-17 This book offers a different approach to the structural prevention of mass atrocities It investigates the conditions that enable vulnerable countries to prevent the perpetration of such violence Structural prevention is commonly framed as the identifying and ameliorating of the root causes of violent conflict a process which typically involves international actors determining what these root causes are and what the best courses of action are to deal with them This overlooks why mass atrocities do not occur in countries that contain the presence of root causes In fact very little research has been conducted on what the causes of peace and stability are particularly in relatively countries located in regions marred by civil war and mass atrocities To better understand how such vulnerable countries prevent the commission of mass atrocities this book proposes an analytical framework which enables not only an understanding of risk which arises from the presence of root causes but also of the factors that build resilience in countries and consequently mitigate and manage such risk Using this framework three countries Botswana Zambia and Tanzania are analysed to account for their long term stability despite their location in neighbourhoods characterised by decades of civil war ethnic repression and mass atrocities This work is a significant contribution to the field of genocide studies and crimes against humanity and will be of interest to students and scholars alike Tanzanian Affairs, 2005

Political Theory Hoveyda Abbas, Ranajay Kumar, 2012 Political Theory is about the description observation analysis and inquiry into the issues of political science Divided into 15 chapters the book captures all relevant aspects of political science and analyses them in the light of examples from India and the rest of the world Through a thorough examination of various political institutions the role of different social groups and the evolution of our politics this book will help students understand the basic concepts and notions of political theory and illustrate how these concepts apply to political systems across the world The Theory and Practice of African Politics Christian P.
