Peoples Movement Reconciliation In Queensland:

Places of Reconciliation Sarah W Pinto, 2021-06-01 Central Melbourne is filled with markers of the city's pasts. At its heart are the stories of exploration and settlement of the so-called first to arrive and of the building of a colony and nation. But when it comes to its Indigenous pasts, the centre of Melbourne has long been a place of silence. Over the last two decades, Indigenous histories and peoples have been brought into central Melbourne's commemorative landscapes. Memorials, commemorative markers, namings, and public artworks have all been used to remember the city's Indigenous pasts. Places of Reconciliation shows how they came to be part of the city and the ways in which they have challenged the erasures of its Indigenous histories. Sarah Pinto considers the kind of places that have been made and undone by these commemorations and concludes that the twenty-first-century settler city does not give up its commemorative landscapes easily.

Liberating the Will of Australia Geoffrey Burn, 2020-08-03 Why do many First People in Australia find themselves continually under siege? Why do many interventions fail to produce what was hoped for? Why is it that when there have been many positive developments at some deep level, nothing seems to have changed? Will the Uluru Statement from the Heart ensure the future security of the First Peoples in Australia? By developing strands from Christian theology, Liberating the Will of Australia answers these questions in a way that gets to the heart of the problem. It is shown that the way that the First Peoples were treated by the first European in 1788 became an indelible part of what Australia currently is. This explains why harm is often done even when good is intended and why some problems are too complex to solve. But that does not mean that we need to be stuck in the past through deep repentance by the Subsequent Peoples; much more than an apology, we can take hold of the work of God to bring new things out of what is broken. Ultimately, this is profoundly hopeful. Although focusing on Australia, the theological tools developed can be applied in other colonial and post-colonial contexts.

The Voice and Its Doubles Daniel Fisher, 2016-04-07 Beginning in the early 1980s, Aboriginal Australians found in music, radio, and filmic media a means to make themselves heard across the country and to insert themselves into the center of Australian political life. In The Voice and Its Doubles, Daniel Fisher analyzes the great success of this endeavor, asking what is at stake in the sounds of such media for Aboriginal Australians. Drawing on long-term ethnographic research in northern Australia, Fisher describes the close proximity of musical media, shifting forms of governmental intervention, and those public expressions of intimacy and kinship that suffuse Aboriginal Australian social life. Today's Aboriginal media include genres of country music and hip hop radio requests and broadcast speech visual graphs of a digital audio timeline as well as the statistical media of audience research and the discursive and numerical figures of state audits and cultural policy formation In each of these diverse instances the mediatized voice has become a site for overlapping and at times discordant forms of political expressive and institutional creativity

Reconciliation and Colonial Power Damien Short, 2016-04-08 In 1991 Australia instigated a national reconciliation project between indigenous and non indigenous people Despite being the longest running reconciliation process there has been no authoritative study of Australian reconciliation to date

Reconciliation and Colonial Power is the first book to analyze Australian reconciliation as a process filling a significant gap in theoretical and empirical understanding Damien Short offers a sociological interpretation of this process which suggests that rather than being a genuine attempt at atonement Australian reconciliation is perhaps better understood as the latest stage in the colonial project He considers the relevance of acknowledgement and apology restitution and rights nation building and state legitimacy to the reconciliation project This work compliments the burgeoning literature on reconciliation theory and practice and provides fertile material for comparisons with reconciliation processes in other countries such as Chile and South Africa

Australian Critical Decisions Ann Genovese, 2018-02-02 The 1980s was a time of significant social political and cultural change In Australia law was pivotal to these changes The two High Court cases that this book explores Koowarta v Bjelke Petersen in 1982 and the Tasmanian Dams case in 1983 are famous legally as they marked a decisive reckoning by the Court with both international law and federal constitutionalism Yet these cases also offer a significant marker of Australia in the 1980s a shift to a different form of political engagement nationally and internationally on complex questions about race and the environment This book brings these cases together for the first time It does so to explore not only the legal legacy and relationship between Koowarta and Tasmanian Dams but also to reflect on how Australians experience their law in time and place and why those experiences might require more than the usual legal records The authors include significant figures in Australian public life some of whom were key participants in the cases as well as established and respected scholars in law history Indigenous and environmental studies The book offers a combination of personal recollections of the cases the drama of how they were brought before the courts and decided as well as a consideration of the cases ongoing significance in Australian life This book was previously published as two special issues in the Griffith Law Review
