Rampage Shootings and Gun Control Steffen Hurka, 2017-05-18 While the causes of rampage violence have been analysed thoroughly in diverse academic disciplines we hardly know anything about the factors that affect their consequences for public policy This book addresses rampage shootings in Western Europe and their conditional impact on politicization and policy change in the area of gun control The author sets out to unravel the factors that facilitate or impede the access of gun control to the political agenda in the wake of rampage shootings and analyses why some political debates lead to profound shifts of the policy status quo while others peter out without any legislative reactions In so doing the book not only contributes to the theoretical literature on crisis induced policy making but also provides a wealth of case study evidence on rampage shootings as empirical phenomena In particular the extent to which gun control gets politicized as a policy failure can either result from a bottom up process event severity and media pressure or from a top down logic issue ownership and the electoral cycle Including 12 case studies on the rampage shootings which have triggered a debate over the appropriateness of the affected countries gun policies it illustrates that the way political processes unfold after rampage shootings depends strongly on specific causal configurations and draws comparisons between the cases covered in the book and the way rampage shootings are typically dealt with in the United States This text will be of key interest to scholars and students of public policy policy analysis European Politics and more broadly to comparative politics criminology psychology and sociology The Open Access version of this book available at <https://doi.org/10.4324/9781315209425> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license

Masculinity in Transition K. Allison Hammer, 2023-10-17 Locating the roots of toxic masculinity and finding its displacement in unruly culture Masculinity in Transition analyzes shifting relationships to masculinity in canonical works of twentieth century literature and film as well as in twenty first century media performance and transgender poetics Focusing on toxic masculinity which has assumed new valence since 2016 K Allison Hammer traces its roots to a complex set of ideologies embedded in the histories of settler colonialism racial capitalism and political fraternity and finds that while toxic strains of masculinity are mainly associated with straight white men trans and queer masculinities can be implicated in these systems of power Hammer argues however that these malignant forms of masculinity are not fixed and can be displaced by unruly alliances texts and relationships that reject the nationalisms and gender politics of white male hegemony and perform an urgently needed reimagining of what it means to be masculine Locating these unruly alliances in the writings performances and films of butch lesbians gay men cisgender femmes and trans and nonbinary individuals Masculinity in Transition works through an archive of works of performance art trans poetics Western films and streaming media global creative responses to HIV AIDS and working class and white trash fictions about labor and unionization Masculinity in Transition moves the study of masculinity away from an overriding preoccupation with cisnormativity whiteness and heteronormativity and toward a wider and more generative range of embodiments identifications and ideologies Hammer's bold rethinking of masculinity and its potentially toxic effects lays bare the underlying fragility of normative masculinity Retail e book files for this title are screen reader friendly with images accompanied by short alt text and or extended descriptions
