Admission free

'Look at me: Fashion and Photography in Britain 1960 to the present' opens at Milton Keynes Gallery on 14 July. It includes work by 36 photographer, many leading figures in the genre of fashion photography. It also examines the ways in which a wider range of photographers, some documentary and some editorial, have used clothes as icons of expression. The significance of the magazine page and the fashion spread are acknowledged, and material from documentary archives is incorporated.

Photographs by Cecil Beaton, Norman Parkinson, Terence Donovan, Helmut Newton, Nick Knight, Juergen Teller and 2000Turner Prize winner Wolfgang Tillmans are included in the show. Visitors can re-examine fashion and photography from the Swinging Sixties to the Cool Nineties. Although separated by thirty years, these decades have many similarities - the current fascination with the fusion of fashion, design, music, film and art recurs in both.

Look at me, is a British Council exhibition, curated by Val Williams and Brett Rogers. MK G is the only venue in the UK for this exhibition, at the conclusion of its successful international tour.

The Rise of the Stylist examines the social factors that contributed to the stylist becoming a key role in fashion image making The 1980s stylist is presented as a cultural intermediary and auteur as commercial compass and avant garde innovator Focusing on London from 1980 to 1990 Philip Clarke draws on oral history interviews with the young creatives who were involved in the specific subcultural scenes educational environments and new modes of publishing that informed a unique moment in British cultural life By documenting the history of the stylist in fashion and dress as well as their contribution to fields such as food photography and car manufacture this study looks beyond the style press and bridges the gap between production and promotion The Rise of the Stylist defines the specific nature of the stylist s role in relation to that of other creative occupations and locates discussion of styling within the context of postmodern society where political shifts technological developments and changing attitudes in all fields of cultural production are reflected in the manufacture and dissemination of fashion Layout for Graphic Designers Gavin Ambrose,Paul Harris,2018-03-08
